18 Persons are Hurt in County Road Accidents Over Weekend

Six Members of Family Injured in Collision Sunday

HEAD-ON CRASH

Cars Ram Together on County Trunk C South of Seymour

Ideal spring weather over the weekend resulted in heavy travel on the highways and swelled the number of accidents in Outagamie county. Eighteen persons were injured as seven accidents were reported.

Six of eight persons injured in a head-on collision about 4:30 yesterday afternoon on County Trunk C 7 1/2 miles south of Seymour are confined to a Green Bay hospital. The collision involved cars being driven by Marcel Van Camp, 18, route 1, Kaukauna, who was going south, and Stanley Jach, 37, route 2, Seymour, who was traveling north, according to William Glasheen, county traffic policeman.

Jach suffered a broken leg and his mother, Mrs. Mary Jach, 81, suffered from shock. Van Camp, who received a knee injury. Other occupants of the car were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Camp, and their children, Mary, 14, Floyd, 1, and Aloysius, 16. Frank Van Camp, 55, was cut about the head, and his wife, 40, about the face. Floyd suffered a severe cut on the throat and about 50 stitches were required to close the wound. Mary, bruises to the chest, and Aloysius, a cut about the face. All but Aloysius and Marcel were taken to a Green Bay hospital. Floyd's condition today was reported as not critical.

Falls From Car

Mrs. George Petcoff, 40, Seymour, is confined to a Green Bay hospital with a brain concussion suffered when she fell from a car being driven on Main street, Seymour, by Stanley Marnocka, 51, Seymour, about 9 o'clock Sunday morning. Marnocka applied the brakes to avoid a possible collision when the woman fell from his machine, according to Ronald Decker, county traffic policeman.

Three persons were injured about 8 o'clock last night when two cars collided almost head-on on a county line road in the town of Kaukauna eight miles south of De Pere. The cars were driven by Peter McCabe, 44, route 1, West De Pere, who was traveling north and making a left turn into the driveway at the Mike Nolan farm, and Roy Haum, about 20, Minnesota, who was going south, according to Jack Frenz, county traffic policeman. McCabe suffered a knee injury and his wife, 42, cut about the head and a knee. Pat Grady, 17, an occupant of the Haum machine, was cut about the face.

Another collision that was almost head-on occurred about 8:30 last night on Highway 41 at County Trunk E. Roy W. Evers, 39, Green Bay, was driving east on the highway and Ernest Kersten, 47, route 2, Kaukauna, was turning onto the highway from the county trunk road when the collision occurred, according to Frenz. Edwin Springer, 35, a passenger in the Kersten car, suffered a cut on an arm.

Two Hurt

Two persons were injured when their car and another sideswiped on Highway 45 near Leppila's corner about 4:20 Saturday afternoon. Miss Doris Mae Grimes, 18, Chicago, was driving south and Elmer Scheffe, route 3, Neenah, north when the collision occurred, according to Captain Charles Steidl of the county traffic squad. The Grimes car rolled over. Miss Grimes suffered a broken shoulder. Other occupants of the car who were bruised were Mr. and Mrs. Manfred Pease, Chicago, and their son, Russell, 10. They were taken to St. Elizabeth hospital for treatment. Miss Grimes was still confined to the hospital this afternoon.

Six cars and 19 persons were involved in a series of mishaps which occurred about a collision of two cars on Highway 41 at County Trunk E northeast of Appleton early Saturday morning. Three persons were injured.

IRON MOUNTAIN STREET COLLAPSES INTO OLD MINE

Five men escaped possible death or injury when this road, U. S. Highway 2, collapsed into the pit of an abandoned mine in Iron Mountain, Mich. Four autos and a truck were plunged into 90 feet of water. The pit was formed years ago by a mine cavern and a fill-in had been built to support the highway.

Farmer-Labor Politicians Meet in Appleton in June

Maritime Unions Heads Called Reds

Witness Terms Bridges, Curran, Rathborne 'Communists'

Washington —(AP)—Harry Bridges, Joseph Curran and Mervyn Rathborne, leaders of CIO unions in the maritime field, were called "Communists" today by Peter J. Innes, Jr., of Bridgeport, Conn., a witness before the Dies committee.

Innes, who testified he had been national purchasing agent for the National Maritime Union (CIO), told the committee, in its investigation of un-American activities, that he had attended Communist meetings with all three.

He testified also that he had been sent to the west coast in July and August, 1936, by Curran and Rathborne to prepare for a strike scheduled for that fall.

Describing Ray as a Communist, Innes said that at Ray's instruction he had relieved one Al Yates, engineer's yeoman on the steamship President Taft, for the voyage from New York to San Francisco. En route, he said, one of the ship's radio operators transmitted a message for him secretly and illegally.

Ray had told him, he said, that if he would present his union credentials to the operator the man would obtain information for him about the outcome of a union election in New York.

Innes said the captain of a ship was supposed to censor all messages sent and received from his vessel, but that it was obvious he had not seen the messages in this case.

As proof that the messages had been sent for him, Innes cited a letter and a report which he said he had sent to Curran, mentioning the subject.

Mexico Refuses to Accept Arbitration Offer of Washington

Washington —(AP)—Calling her seizure of American-owned oil properties an issue "domestic in nature," Mexico has rejected an offer of arbitration made by the United States government.

General Eduardo Hay, Mexican minister of foreign affairs, declared in a note made public during the weekend that his government considers arbitration "incompatible" with the facts.

He contended that the American oil companies had not exhausted the means of adjustment provided by Mexican laws.

One American group—the Sinclair interests—concluded an agreement with the Mexican government. It was understood authoritatively that payment over three years for the Sinclair oil properties in 20,000,000 barrels of oil and $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 cash.

'Maniac' Hunted In Sex Slayings In Pennsylvania

Body of Girl Factory Worker Is Found; Automobile Is Clue

Belleville, Pa. —(AP)—Police and CCC youths searched high and low in this central Pennsylvania section today for the tan sedan of a "maniac killer" wanted for the sex slayings of a comely girl factory worker and a Pennsylvania State college co-ed.

Lynn G. Adams, head of the state motor police, said the fatal bludgeoning of Fay Gates, 25-year-old employee of a match factory, near here early yesterday was "identical" with the slaying of Rachel Taylor, 17-year-old co-ed, five weeks ago. That occurred only 12 miles away.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the same man killed both," he said. "A maniac killer is at large among us, a man who is probably insane in every respect. No one can tell where he will strike next."

Adams indicated the tan automobile was the most promising clue police have. Two girl companions of Miss Gates said a car of that color had been following them a short time before her battered body was found along a lonely road in "Spook Hollow" at 1 a. m. (C.S.T.) Sunday.

Attended Movie

After attending a movie in Belleville Saturday night, Miss Gates drove the two girl acquaintances to their homes in her car and was returning to her own home in the neighboring village of Mt. Eagle when overtaken by her assailant.

A young man who had been visiting Fay's sister, Lois, at the Gates home found the body on his way home. Miss Gates' clothing was torn and blood-stained and she had been savagely beaten on the head with a blunt instrument. An autopsy...

Conservation Probe Scheduled to Start Today at Madison

Madison —(AP)—Investigation of the conservation department by the division of departmental research was scheduled to begin at the capitol today.

Conservation Director H. W. Mackenzie and two subordinates, F. G. Wilson and C. L. Harrington, were requested by August Frey, research director, to appear at the initial hearing this afternoon.

Governor Heil, who said last week that "people are trying to build up propaganda against the investigation," predicted there would be "no whitewash."

The majority report of the assembly committee which investigated the conservation department during the legislative session last year laid the groundwork for the present probe when it recommended the research division inquire more fully into timber land trades, asserting the "questionable manner" in which trades had been made evoked much criticism in northern Wisconsin.

Harrington has charge of forests and parks, while Wilson directs cooperative forestry.

Fear Extension of War To Southeastern Europe; Crisis Likely This Week

Destroyer Sunk In Air Attacks, London Admits

Continues to Deny Battleship Sunk by Nazi Bombers

BULLETIN

Alexandria —(AP)—A new squadron of allied cruisers and auxiliary warcraft arrived today and British official circles said "we are ready to meet Italy on land, sea and air should she decide to fight."

London —(AP)—The Polish destroyer Grom has been sunk by a bomb, the Polish naval staff announced today in London. The 2,144-ton destroyer was engaged in operations in Norway. One officer and 65 men were believed lost.

Paris —(AP)—The French admiral tonight announced the sinking of the French destroyer Bison by German planes while escorting troop transports in the North sea. The Bison was a vessel of 2,436 tons. Her normal complement was 200 men. She was completed in 1930. An admiralty communiqué said:

"On May 3 a convoy of troop transports was attacked in the North sea by enemy aviation. No ship of the inter-allied convoy was touched but the destroyer Bison, which formed part of the escort, was sunk. A great part of the crew was saved.

"Families of the victims have been notified."

London —(AP)—In the midst of vehement public demand for a more vigorous prosecution of the war, Britain today announced loss last week of the 1,870-ton destroyer Afridi in German bombing raids upon the convoys withdrawing allied troops from Namsos, Norway.

The admiralty stood by its denial of German claims of having sunk a battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class and a heavy cruiser in the same operations.

But it admitted that the Afridi, forty-seventh naval loss officially announced by the British, was "struck by a bomb and subsequently sunk" during an "insistent attack" by "waves of enemy aircraft."

The admiralty said escort vessels' anti-aircraft fire was so effective that two German bombers were...

Would End Raids Upon Citizens

Roosevelt Pledges His Support for Any International Agreement

Washington —(AP)—President Roosevelt, who has asked warring European nations to refrain from bombing non-combatants, pledged his support today for any international agreement endorsing that principle.

"The bombing of helpless and unprotected civilians is a tragedy which has aroused the horror of all mankind," he wrote the annual convention of the American Red Cross.

"I recall with pride that the United States consistently has taken the lead in urging that this international practice be prohibited."

Pointing out that the International Red Cross had urged nations in 1938 to take joint steps "to prevent such outrages in the future," the president expressed regret that this never had been done.

"As for the United States government," he said, "I can assure you of my strongest recommendation for adherence to any international convention which will give this protection to civilian and non-combatant populations."

Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, reported that 250,000 American women had made 2,000,000 garments and surgical dressings in response to demands from Poland, Hungary, Rumania, Lithuania, Latvia, France, England, Finland and Norway.

In addition to $1,000,000 set aside from Red Cross funds to help European war sufferers, he said, the organization has received $800,000 in voluntary contributions.

Most of this money has been spent," Davis added, declaring that the Red Cross soon "may be compelled to ask the people for a substantial relief fund."

Nazis Seize Fort and Win New Air Base

Ostersund, Sweden —(AP)—Norwegian refugees flocking across the near-by border into Sweden said today that German capture of the Hegra fortress had given the nazis possession of a vital air base at Varnes.

(Hegra's fall was announced by DNB, official German news agency last night.)

This base, adaptable for German bombing planes, is only 30 miles from the Norwegian-Swedish frontier and only 375 miles airline from the northern ore port of Narvik, where a small German garrison is standing off an allied attack.

The refugees said the big guns of the Hegra fortress kept the Germans from establishing a bombing base at Varnes through three weeks of incessant fighting, until the defenders were left "on the verge of starvation and without ammunition."

Encircle Fortress

These accounts said the Germans pushed east from Trondheim deep into the Stjordalen (valley), between ice and snow-cloaked mountains, in the early days of the war.

Hurled back by big guns, the nazis called upon their Alpine troops to encircle the fortress and the adjoining village of Hegra, on the Trondheim-Storlien railway 20 miles east of Trondheim and launched an attack supported by light field artillery, machine-guns and planes.

The refugees said that within a few days the first of the German guns left most of the village a mass of smoking ruins and the fortress itself pock-marked. The German fire was almost continuous the refugees declared.

They said the Hegra defenders, forced to conserve their scanty stores of food and munitions, held...

Drunken Driver Hits Bridge Rail

Raymond H. Sprister Pleads Guilty to Charge in Municipal Court

Raymond H. Sprister, 24, 393 N. Appleton street, pleaded guilty of drunken driving when he appeared in municipal court before Judge Thomas H. Ryan this morning.

The motorist was fined $50 and costs with an alternative of 60 days in the county detention camp unless he stands bail.

His driving license was ordered revoked for a year.

Sprister was arrested by city police after he drove his car into the railing of Memorial drive bridge about 12:40 Sunday morning. He was driving south when the accident occurred.

Sen. Schwollenbach Named Federal Judge

Washington —(AP)—President Roosevelt nominated Senator Lewis B. Schwollenbach (D-Wash.) today to be United States district judge for the Eastern district of Washington.

Shortly afterwards the senate unanimously confirmed the nomination.

The appointment fills a judgeship that has been vacant since last September and came after five months of reports that the junior Washington senator had been selected for the post.

Georgia Congressman Found Not Guilty of Conspiracy To Sell Postal Appointments

Gainesville, Ga. —(AP)—Representative B. Grank Whelchel (D-Ga.) was acquitted today in federal court of charges that he conspired to sell postal appointments.

A jury which had considered the case since 6 o'clock Saturday evening, returned the verdict to District Judge E. Marvin Underwood at 8:45 a. m.

The verdict also freed Whelchel's co-defendant, H. Grady Jones, who was accused by the government as go-between for the congressman in the alleged job sales.

Scarcely 60 people were in the court room when the jury filed in to return the verdict.

As the clerk read the decision, defense lawyers gripped the congressman's hands and shook them.

There was no expression from the spectators.

The federal prosecutors were headed by Assistant Attorney Gen.

Turks Mass Along Borders; Nazis Also Near Frontiers

Russians and Italians Active; Diplomats Send Gloomy Reports; Allied Warships In Aegean Sea; Hungary Has Spy Scare

Budapest —(AP)—Extension of the war to southeastern Europe seemed more imminent today than at any time since the first days of the conflict.

Contributing to the belief of many diplomats that a crisis may be reached this week were the following developments, officially unconfirmed in some cases but given general credence:

1. Turkish troops were reported massing along the Greek and Bulgarian frontiers.
2. German troop concentrations were noted near the Yugoslav and Hungarian frontiers, as well as the shipment of nazi tanks and war materials into eastern Slovakia, a reich protectorate.
3. Italian military activity near the Yugoslav frontier and the Dodecanese islands.

British Troops Near Namsos in Trap, Nazis Say

Assert Germans on Way to Narvik Will Mop Up Detachments

Berlin —(AP)—British detachments cut off from the main expeditionary force when the allies abandoned the Norwegian port of Namsos have been spotted by scouts in a region north of Namsos, authorized sources reported today.

The British were seen in the region between Mo, terminus of a railroad line and a highway extending northward from Namsos, and Bodoe, small Norwegian coast town about 65 miles north of Mo.

The first objective of German troops on their way to Narvik would be to mop up these detachments.

The German high command announced that the pacification of southern and central Norway was virtually completed with the surrender of the "die-hard" Norwegian fortress of Hegra, 20 miles east of Trondheim.

Ammunition Blown Up

Nazi airmen, harassing allied troops encircling Narvik, were reported to have blown up an enemy ammunition dump and raided Harsad, 65 miles north of the port.

The high command reported that British artillery forces had been strengthened in the northern Narvik region — the allies' last foothold in Norway — but said no more intense fighting had developed so far.

The German high command said that "one enemy battleship" was hit by a heavy bomb and that nazi war planes raided troops concentrations and exploded a munitions dump there.

Our troops started to advance northward in the Trondheim region," the German communiqué added, hinting that the nazis intended to accept the allied challenge for Narvik.

North Dakota Tornado Causes $150,000 Loss

Rismarck, N. D. —(AP)—A tornado ripped through a 30-mile stretch on farm lands in northern Morton and Burleigh counties yesterday, killing several head of livestock and causing an estimated $150,000 damage to farm buildings. The storm leveled more than a score of barns.

The Greeks deny reports of a secret agreement to let Britain and France both of whom have guaranteed her independence, to use the port, but foreign observers doubt that Greece would offer any objections if war comes.

There was no indication that the Greek government believed an allied landing for at Salonika was imminent, and fishermen returning to the port said they had seen no signs of any preparations for such a move.

The fishermen, however, reported the presence of additional allied naval units in the Aegean sea, where British vessels have been on patrol since the start of the war.

Reports of the appearance of Russian reinforcements along the Rumanian frontier were regarded as a hopeful sign by some quarters in Budapest, which interpreted this development as a sign of Moscow's determination to forestall any German-Italian plan to divide the Balkans.

Information furnished by the German gestapo was said to have led to the spy roundup in Hungary, which government circles said had smashed a huge organization engaged in espionage and propaganda activities.

Man and Girl Killed in Minnesota Tragedy

Early Caucuses In GOP to Select Resolutions Group

Committee Will Meet Week Before Convention To Draft Platform

Washington — (AP)—Early caucuses to select members of the Republican resolutions committee were predicted today following official word that the group would meet a week before the national convention to draft a party platform.

Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican national committee announced he was taking the initiative in assembling the members' debate about June 17 in Philadelphia. The convention meets June 24 in that city.

This departure from convention routine is expected to develop much preliminary talk of presidential candidates as well as of platform planks, since the resolutions committee, which formulates the platform, is made up of a party leader from each state.

Ordinarily the committee men are not picked until the convention meets. Twenty-one states already have chosen their delegates.

Democrats Lagging

Operating more slowly than their opposition, the Democrats have picked delegates in only 12 states.

Republicans will pick 80 more delegates this week, including today 8 in Idaho 44 in California and 8 in South Dakota tomorrow, and 12 Saturday in Arkansas and 8 in North Dakota.

Democrats will choose 22 delegates in Alabama, 44 in California, 14 in Florida and 8 in South Dakota tomorrow, and 22 Saturday in Iowa.

Principal interest today was trained on Maryland's presidential primary. The voters were selecting delegates to state conventions, which in turn will pick the 16 national convention delegates of each party.

Devey Alone on Ballot

Thomas E. Devey, New York Republican, was the only entrant from either party on the presidential ballot. Republican voters had the option of voting for his delegate slate or an uncommitted one.

In tomorrow's California primary there is no contest on the Republican side, where a slate of 44 delegates is running unpledged.

Four slates are entered on the Democratic ballot. There are two pro-Roosevelt slates, a "ham and eggs" pension ticket, and a fourth group favoring Vice President Garner.

Speaker Bankhead will get the presidential endorsement of Alabama's 22 Democratic delegates to be chosen in a primary tomorrow, while South Dakota voters will choose 8 uncommitted delegates for each party.

Florida's Democratic delegates also will be selected in a primary tomorrow, with 47 of the 88 men seeking places on the 14-vote delegation favoring re-nomination of President Roosevelt and the rest having scattered choices.

Conflict in Europe Is 'Passing Hurricane,' Evangeline Booth Says

Atlantic City, N. J. — Delegates to the General Conference of the Methodist church were prepared to return to their homes today after hearing the war in Europe described on the one hand as a "passing hurricane" and on the other as a "rising tide of savagery."

Evangeline Booth, former commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, told the conference yesterday the war would not last and added: "It is a passing hurricane. No matter what the creed, where the land, or what the era, the best in the world is not defeated by the worst."

Bishop Arthur J. Moore of San Antonio, Texas, said "the rising tide of savagery and materialism has brought our world to the edge of an abyss."

Harvester Firm Rapped in Report

Examiner Wants Company to Withdraw Recognition From 6 Unions

Chicago — (AP)—Trial Examiner C. W. Whitmore of the national labor relations board recommended today that the International Harvester company disestablish and withdraw all recognition from six unions in five cities on the ground they were company-dominated.

The examiner's intermediate report, announced by Regional Director G. L. Patterson, found that the company dominated and interfered with the formation and administration of the unions.

Besides recommending disestablishment and withdrawal of recognition of the unions as representatives of employees for dealing with problems of wages and working conditions, Whitmore recommended that the company cease giving effect to or performing any contract or agreement now existing with any of the unions or renewing or entering into new contracts.

The unions were the Rock Falls Employees Association, Rock Falls, Ill.; United Motor Power Association, Rock Island, Ill.; Employees Association of East Moline Works, East Moline, Ill.; Harvester Employees Industrial Union, Milwaukee, Wis.; and the Employees Mutual Association of McCormick works, Chicago, and West Pullman Independent union, West Pullman works, Chicago.

The Farm Equipment Workers Organizing Committee (CIOW) filed charges with the labor board accusing International Harvester of unfair labor practices. The board consolidated the cases, issued its complaint and Whitmore conducted hearings between June 22 and Oct. 5, 1939, at Chicago, Sterling and East Moline, Ill., Davenport, Iowa and Milwaukee.

Florida's Democratic delegates also will be selected in a primary tomorrow, with 47 of the 88 men seeking places on the 14-vote delegation favoring re-nomination of President Roosevelt and the rest having scattered choices.

Speaker Bankhead will get the presidential endorsement of Alabama's 22 Democratic delegates to be chosen in a primary tomorrow, while South Dakota voters will choose 8 uncommitted delegates for each party.

WAR CLOUDS GATHERING OVER MEDITERRANEAN

Europe's warring powers focused their attention on the eastern Mediterranean as a British-French fleet was concentrated at Alexandria (1) while Italian massed armed forces in the Dodecanese Islands (2). Both Turkey and Greece (3) stepped up defense preparations and Germany's ambassador to Turkey was called to Berlin. Greece strengthened its "Metaxas line" along the Albanian border. Strong units of the Yugoslav fleet were sighted off the eastern coast of Greece (3). South of the German border (4) Yugoslavia showed signs of increasing anxiety, while large detachments of German mechanized troops were reported sighted along the Hungarian frontier and the Yugoslav border. In Rome (5) an authoritative writer predicted German invasion of British territory.

Blockade Must be Supported By Other Action; Question of Air, Sea Rule May Decide War

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York — (AP)—Britain has denied the Nazi claim that German airplanes sunk an English battleship and a heavy cruiser in massed attacks off the Norwegian coast.

Whether these warships were sent to the bottom is of small consequence compared with the intimation which surrounds the claim—that the superiority of the air over the sea has been established and that the German air force is master of the allied navies.

Claims and counter-claims over the relative merits of these two fighting arms will increase for propaganda purposes, and we shall have to watch it if we are to keep our perspective.

It is natural that this situation should exist, for Herr Hitler's mighty air force is the military branch upon which he is depending to win the war. The allies are placing chief confidence in their surface fleets.

However, naval experts tell us that there has been no demonstration of general air superiority over the sea.

May Decide Outcome

Airplanes have triumphed over warships in individual instances, and vice versa. But the sinking of one warship or ten doesn't prove general superiority any more than the destruction of 50 fighting planes would prove the general inferiority of an air fleet.

The question of supremacy is something to be determined, and the outcome of the war likely will depend on this. If Hitler can smash the allied fleet he will win the war. If he can't, the blockade will in the long run give him a nightmarish time. And we mustn't forget that the increasingly strong allied air forces will be supporting their surface ships.

The Anglo-French allies started out this war with a mighty command of the seas and a superiority in resources, both financial and material, which they felt would win them the war. They probably were justified in their faith, and this domination of the ocean and superiority of resources still exists.

War Not Pushed

The allied trouble thus far has lain, not in the lack of resources, but in lack of initiative in prosecution of the war, as many of their own people are now insisting. They have allowed themselves to be outsmarted by a man who is either one of the master strategists of history or one of the luckiest opportunists who ever lived.

And if the claim is that Herr Hitler is merely lucky, then the answer is that luck which holds good in so many instances, as his has, is just as good as master strategy.

The English and French have had plenty of time to get over their under-estimation of the Nazi dictator. Claims that he is unscrupulous don't help them win the war, but must be dealt with by deeds rather than by words.

Blockade Not Enough

The indications are that allies have been clinging too closely to their original strategy for winning the war—strangulation by blockade with as little effort outside that as possible. The blockade undoubtedly is their most powerful weapon, but developments show that it must be supported by other action.

It is generally agreed that, had the allies struck with all their prepared force when Hitler first invaded Norway, they could have expelled the Germans. A concerted naval and air attack on Trondheim most likely would have turned the trick. But that would have involved risking valuable equipment—naval and air—perhaps a heavy loss of life.

Cabinet Faces Attack

British Premier Chamberlain and his cabinet are expected to come under fire tomorrow in the house of commons to answer for their conduct of recent operations.

The debate will be developed in under the British system of government the prime minister and his cabinet accept full responsibility for any mishaps. This is so because he is the boss of the cabinet. His decisions are final, subject to challenge by parliament.

He isn't of course a military expert and it might be unfair to charge him with faulty military tactics. It is fair to note, however, that he is conservative and not only a man of very strong opinions but a decidedly stubborn when once his mind is made up.

Mr. Chamberlain probably will be advised to make some radical changes in his official family, and initiate a greater degree of flexibility in the British program of dependence on economic strangulation by blockade.

Davies Fears End Of War Will Bring New Crisis in U. S.

Thinks 1930 Depression May be 'Prosperity' In Comparison

Madison — (AP)—A warning that the aftermath of the European war may leave America facing an economic crisis that would rank the 1930 depression as a period of prosperity was sounded last night by Joseph E. Davies, special assistant to Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Davies, who once was a University of Wisconsin law student, spoke before 500 persons at a banquet at the Memorial union, concluding a two-day program for the dedication of the university's new law library.

Because of his position in the state department he said it was improper for him to discuss the political or military aspects of the war, but that Americans should inquire into the possible indirect consequences.

Fears Barter System

He foresaw gold being threatened as a medium of exchange by a barter system, the triumph of which, he asserted, might involve "serious dependence of the Americas upon European control."

Davies said, "a financial and industrial crisis" far more than in 1930 might face this nation if it lost its European markets and the South American and other markets were closed by preferential barter.

"I am not an alarmist," he said. "These conditions are now being met by American business and by the American government. It is innate in the genius of our country to meet emergencies and find their solution safely and practically. It is essential, however, that the facts should be seen and their possible significance understood."

"It is our duty to keep our nation out of war," he said. "I would stress again liberty and law as the foundation of our life. Whatever the result of the world conflict, our form of government must never be transplanted from a government of and for the people to a government of, by and for a dictatorship."

recommended that congress act this session on the Logan-Walter bill.

Chairman Ashurst (D-Ariz.) said the 16 members at the committee meeting were "militantly" opposed to any delay in senate consideration of the controversial, house-approved bill.

President Roosevelt today vetoed a bill to extend to cotton the system of federal crop insurance now applied experimentally to wheat.

Explains Veto

The president explained in a message to the senate that the administration did not yet have the necessary "backlog of experience" to establish a sound actuarial basis for crop insurance which would make it fully self-supporting.

Secretary of Labor Perkins urged today that social security benefits and wage-hour regulations be extended in some form to workers on "industrial" farms as distinguished from "home" farms.

Miss Perkins testified before the senate civil liberties that this would be one means of bettering the status of thousands of migratory farm workers who find intermittent employment in large-scale farming carried out along industrial lines.

FLFP Influence

Leader of the latter's forces in that neighborhood is Sam Sigman of Appleton. Opposing his leadership is another group headed by Walter Melchoir of Appleton, who recently announced himself as a candidate for congress in the eighth district.

Meanwhile Progressive headquarters here announced that Senator Robert M. La Follette would return to Wisconsin to make the principal speech at Wisconsin Rapids rally of the Progressive regulars May 19. William T. ## Farley and Garner May Have Talks of Compromise in Race

BY W. B. RAGSDALE

Washington — (AP)—No outsider knows what James A. Farley and Vice President Garner talked about at their recent political conference. Both of them are making a point of not saying. But if you were in their shoes, what would you talk about?

They are the only two men who have said—without any strings—that their names would go before the Democratic national convention as candidates. Furthermore, they see the tide for President Roosevelt's re-nomination rising about their ears.

Both of them are realists. They understand the give-and-take of politics. They are skilled in the art of political negotiation. That has always been their special aptitude.

Few laws bear the Garner name. He preferred to work backstage. Few can remember, nowadays, the speeches he used to make in the house, though he used to lambast the Republican financial and tax policies regularly.

Garner, like Farley, is not remembered for laws or debates. Both are used to taking facts and trading them in for the nearest approach to what they want that is possible for them to get.

They have seen the third-term movement develop in the Democratic party, helped along by a group inside the administration. They realize the scope and strength of its sweep. They know their political history and the potential power of the president, any president, over his own party.

Highly Garner and Farley have been discussing the possibility of a compromise candidate for the Democrats.

Arline Judge Bride Of Hotel Executive

Louisville, Ky. — (AP)—Arline Judge, film actress, who recently won a purported $100,000 settlement in divorcing Daniel R. Toopina, New York socialite-sportsman, has embarked upon her third marital venture.

Her new husband is James McKinley Bryant, an executive for a swank Fifth avenue hotel in New York city, who in 1936 figured with a navy lieutenant in a much publicized fistic performance at a party given by Johnny Weissmuller, former film Tarzan, in a Manhattan night club.

Bryant declined to be specific about the marriage. All he would say was that it took place "somewhere in Kentucky" between 6 p. m. Saturday and 3 a. m. Sunday.

Both she and Bryant came here to attend the Kentucky derby. They left for New York city last night by train.

It was the 31-year-old Bryant's second marriage. The 27-year-old Miss Judge's first husband was Wesley Ruggles, film director.

High Court Upholds Decision Finding 12 Oil Firms and 5 Men Violated Anti-Trust Act

tant victory which will aid the justice department in its anti-monopoly campaign.

The decision departed from the famous "rule of reason" interpretation of the Sherman act pronounced by the tribunal in 1911. The court held then that the Sherman act prohibited only "unreasonable" restraints of interstate commerce.

Since 1911, some of the court's opinions have adhered to this view, while others have abandoned it.

Oil Firms' Contention

Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Murphy did not participate in today's decision.

The oil companies, in defending their action, contended that they had engaged only in a "voluntary cooperative effort" to remove "competitive evil—distress gasoline" and that the resulting prices were not unreasonable.

The justice department charged the defendants with conspiring to raise prices by concerted purchases of gasoline from independent refiners in the mid-continent oil field and in the Texas oil field in 1935 and 1936. It was alleged that the purchases were made at a "spot" tank car price—upon which gasoline prices in that area are based.

Justice Douglas said that the 1911 anti-trust decisions "have no application to combinations operating directly on prices or price structures."

Helped Increase Prices

"For over 40 years," he continued, "this court has consistently and without deviation adhered to the principle that price-fixing agreements are unlawful per se under the Sherman act and that no showing of so-called competitive abuses or evils which those agreements were designed to eliminate or alleviate may be interposed as a defense."

Saying that "there was abundant evidence that the combination had the purpose to raise prices" and that "there was ample evidence that the buying programs at least contributed to the price rise," Douglas added:

"Proof that there was a conspiracy, that its purpose was to raise prices, and that it caused or contributed to a price rise is proof of the actual consummation or execution of a conspiracy under section one of the Sherman act."

This section prohibits combinations or conspiracies in restraint of interstate trade or commerce.

Defendants in Oil Case

Defendants in the oil case were: Socony-Vacuum Oil company; Wadsworth Oil company; Empire Oil and Refining company; Continental Oil company; Pure Oil company; Shell Petroleum Corporation; Sinclair Refining company; Mid-Continent Petroleum Corporation; Phillips Petroleum company; Skelly Oil company; Globe Oil and Refining company;

Power Co. Plans Dam in Michigan

Flood Water Storage, Regularity of Flow Purposes of Project

The Wisconsin Michigan Power company has advised the federal power commission at Washington, D. C., that it plans to build a dam and reservoir on the Michigan river in Iron county, Mich.

William E. Schubert, general manager of the company, said today the project "is only in its preliminary stages" but that the company has obtained permission of the Iron county board of supervisors.

The dam would be 50 feet high and create a 113,800-acre-foot reservoir. Purpose of the reservoir would be to store flood waters and improve the regularity of the flow to the company's four plants on the Menominee river, into which the Michigan flows.

Schubert reported that a hearing on the project will be held before the Michigan public service commission at Lansing Thursday.

The site of the dam is in Mansfield township, north of Crystal Falls, Mich.

City's Food Men To Hear Federal Plan Explained

Relief Committee to Out- line Workings of Com- modities Stamp System

Appleton food dealers will meet with F. A. W. Hammond, relief director, and the city's relief at 7:30 tonight in city hall to hear an explanation of the federal government's food stamp plan for the distribution of surplus commodities to those receiving relief aid.

Letters have been sent by the relief department inviting wholesale and retail grocers, meat dealers, fruit dealers, dairymen and bakers to the meeting.

Since the city council requested the federal government to install the plan in Appleton, the regional office of the surplus commodities corporation has announced a district stamp plan to reduce overhead expenditures. Under the plan, the system might be given as a unit to a whole county or a number of counties.

The stamp plan is a method of distributing surplus foods to those receiving relief aid, replacing the present system under which the commodities are shipped to the city and given directly to relief clients.

The system, if the federal government installs it here, will be made available to each person receiving public assistance, including direct relief clients, WPA workers, and beneficiaries of old age, blind and mothers' pensions.

Cooperation of the food dealers will be necessary if the plan is installed in Appleton.

Building construction of all types, including heavy industrial plants, forms and important part of the business of the Koepeke Construction company, Appleton.

The firm has a reputation of first class service that combines speed with efficiency.

For example, the Koepeke Construction company holds the world record in laying 3,540 feet of 20-foot concrete highway slabs in one day. This work was done on Highway 8 near Bruce, the work being completed in a 14-hour day with two work shifts.

The construction firm is fully equipped to give efficient service. The equipment solves many building problems readily and simply.

The firm has a concrete pump that pours concrete into places that otherwise would be inaccessible. No type of building is too difficult a job for the Koepeke Construction company to handle. A large number of buildings, including industrial plants, have been erected by the firm in the state during past years.

Firms using the services of the construction company have been given the utmost satisfaction and know that the name Koepeke Construction company stands for quality workmanship with quality products and speedy and efficient work.

Excavations for New Dwellings Can be Completed in Few Hours

It takes Al Krause and his crew only from four to five hours to excavate for the foundation of an average-sized home.

Mr. Krause, 1348 W. Spencer street, has equipment specifically adapted to making excavations for new homes quickly, efficiently, and neatly. Last year, for example, he dug the basements and cellars for 300 new dwellings in Appleton and vicinity.

The shovel which Mr. Krause and his crew uses is small (4-yard size) and extremely maneuverable. For example, the owner recalls one cellar which he dug with the machine which was only six by 12 feet in dimension, and 6 feet deep.

With a crew of three or four men, Mr. Krause ably handles jobs considerably larger than those in the home building field. He has made excavations for numerous large buildings in this vicinity.

The prospective home builder, intent on having the work done rapidly but with care and precision, will be interested in a recent experience Mr. Krause had in Kimberly.

He began the excavation for a new house in Kimberly about 9:30 one morning. By 5:30 that afternoon, the shovel had completed not one but three dwelling excavations and by 6 o'clock had been set up to resume operations on a fourth the next morning.

Gas-driven, the shovel is especially built for fashioning excavations for residences. Additional equipment includes an air hammer for digging in frost, stone, or concrete. Mr. Krause has had 14 years of experience with this type of equipment.

It is believed that the first fire insurance company in America was organized at Charleston, S. C., in 1730.

NEW TYPE SHOWERHEAD
New water-saving types of showerheads frequently are sources of money saving as well. Because they use from 25 to 50 per cent less water than the old-fashioned large diameter heads, there is a corresponding decrease in the cost of fuel for heating the water.

Another important feature of these new showerheads, which may be installed under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration, is that they are practically nonclogging.

A. F. of L. Faces Prestige Crisis, Lawrence States

Future as National Labor Organization Is at Stake

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—The American Federation of Labor is facing a crisis of prestige inside and outside of congress and its future as a national labor organization.

The crisis comes about through the defeat which has just been handed the A. F. of L. by the executive council by the members of the house labor committee who are controlled by the CIO. The story is a tragic illustration either of gullibility or political incapacity on the part of the A. F. of L. when it comes to handling legislation.

A few weeks ago the A. F. of L. was sponsoring the work of the Smith committee investigating the labor board and the Wagner act. Without the A. F. of L.'s help, the committee could not have been created in the first instance. When time came for the Smith committee to make its report, it was assumed on Capitol Hill that the A. F. of L. would support the committee's recommendations. Instead it was announced in behalf of William Green, president of the A. F. of L., that his organization liked the work of the committee, but would not support its legislative proposals.

The action stirred many members of the house who hitherto had been friendly to the A. F. of L. No explanation was forthcoming until a week or so later when the regular house committee voted to bring out a bill which would wipe out the Wagner law a clause protecting A. F. of L. craft unions from being so successfully in New York state.

Receded on Position
Most observers assumed then that the A. F. of L. had thrown overboard its friends because it was about to receive administration support for the Wagner amendment. The A. F. of L. however, receded on its position which had been one of its substance on a new labor board and agreed with the administration that two additional members should be added but the present board of three should retain their jobs and control of the labor board.

The general impression in congress was that the A. F. of L. had been so anxious to get administration support for the craft amendment that it was willing to trade away its previous hostility to the labor board itself.

Now comes what the vanguard of the day would call the "pay-off." The A. F. of L. has believed that

KIMBERLY HIGH SCHOOL BAND HAS FIVE DRUM MAJORS

Shown arrayed in snappy uniforms are the five drum majors of the Kimberly High school band. Left to right they are Dave Smith, son of the Rev. and Mrs. L. C. Smith; Vivian Van Dyke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Van Dyke; Little Chute; LaVerne Melcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Melcher; Theresa Vermeern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vermeern; and Clarence DeWidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. John DeWidt. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Chairman Norton of the house committee was sincere in her support of the craft amendment desired by the A. F. of L. It turns out that Mrs. Norton doesn't care a bit about any amendments including her own and that she has not hesitated to abandon the understanding or to ignore the strategy which caused the A. F. of L. to drop all other amendments and support her bill. Copies of a letter written by Mrs. Norton announcing her agreement with the CIO position that there shall be no amendment of any kind to the Wagner labor act have just been circulated on Capitol Hill.

Here is what Mrs. Norton writes to a CIO official of a Washington labor union: "This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 20 with attached copy of a resolution adopted by your organization opposing H. R. 9195 the Norton bill, and H. R. 6812, the Smith bill to amend the National Labor Relations act. "As chairman of the committee, all committee bills bear my name. This is the usual procedure in all committees. However I am entirely in accord with you that no amendments should be passed this year to the National Labor Relations act. I shall take this position on the floor when the rule comes before us. The only way all amendments can be defeated is to vote down the rule when it comes up for adoption. Thank you for letting me know the views of your organization.

Wreng Horse?
Conservative Democrats and Republicans who have been flabbergasted by the tactics of the A. F. of L. are wondering whether President Green is now satisfied that he cannot depend on the administration supporters to keep agreements with him and whether he proposes now to let the CIO forces run rough shod over him at the capital. Many Republicans who had intended to co-operate with a portion of the Norton bill when the A. F. of L. wanted passed now are lukewarm about it. The Republican leadership has refused to instruct the rank and file to take any position. Members of congress who have been accustomed to look to the A. F. of L. for support are beginning to wonder if they haven't been betting on the wrong horse and whether the CIO legislative speaking, at least is not the better auxiliary for them in the coming elections. The A. F. of L. has lost prestige at this session of congress because it deserted its friends in the Democratic and Republican parties who believe that a new labor board must be put in to office and who want the present labor board dismissed because of failure to conduct itself properly in public hearings and in the handling of decisions. The record is full of instances of collusion between labor board employees and the CIO.

If the A. F. of L. seeks an alliance now with conservatives in congress, it will have to be along the lines of virtually all of the Smith bill. The support of these conservatives will not be forthcoming either unless the A. F. of L. is also prepared to make a genuine fight for passage by the senate of whatever bill passes the house as a consequence of the coalition of the Democratic conservatives and the Republicans

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

For Keynoters and Party Managers

It is understood that the politicians who are now in control of the Republican party intend to offer the voters a guaranty, as definite as words can make it, that they will keep the country out of war. It is assumed that the Democrats will follow suit, and that then the Republican campaigners will insist that while their guaranty can be relied upon, the Democratic guaranty cannot be. This, at least, is what the politicians now think they will be thinking between June 15 and July 15.

Their present plan of campaign rests on the assumption that the war will be essentially the same war throughout the summer and until election; that is to say, that the war will continue to be bottled up in the North Sea, on the western front, and perhaps in the Mediterranean. In such a war the Allies may lose a position here and there; the Nazis and perhaps the Italians may overrun small countries here and there. But the war will remain a localized European war from which the United States can easily keep aloof by calling home its merchant ships and its citizens.

If this estimate of the situation is correct, it is indeed true that the guaranties will be valid; as long as the war is bottled up in Europe, no occasion is likely to present itself in which the United States would have to face the awful choice between war and peace.

Depends On Whether War Stays Bottled Up

Whether the war will remain bottled up in Europe depends however, not upon the party platform but upon whether the Allies can resist and repel any great attack upon their naval supremacy. Thus far they have bottled up the war in Europe. Their navies hold a great semi-circle from Narvik in northern Norway to Gibraltar, the Dardanelles and Suez. Within that circle our armies have thus far held the positions on land from which serious blows might be struck by land.

Inside the A. F. of L. there is already strong criticism of the course taken by the legislative representatives of the organization, but not until the Norton letter deserting the A. F. of L. was discovered did it become apparent that the American Federation of Labor can be jostled around the legislative halls of congress with impunity. For the CIO emerges triumphant. For the CIO defends the present labor board and is against all amendments. That position is at present going to prove victorious unless a new alliance between the A. F. of L. and its friends in congress is worked out this week.

was the chance that they may prove to be deusive as they were in 1916, one might say that a certain propensity to bamboozle the people is to be expected in any election campaign. But more than that is now involved.

It is not only a question of the insincerity of making promises that no man can be sure of fulfilling. That would not be too important in itself; we have become so habituated to it in domestic politics that we amply and indulgently forgive in a political candidate a calculated and planned insincerity which we should regard as immoral in a friend. We regard it as a legitimate part of the game of politics, more or less like a fake kick in football, when a candidate for the highest office in the land says one thing to the voters and another thing to his intimate supporters.

But in this particular instance the making of cast-iron pledges for a long and very uncertain future has a much graver disadvantage. For the two parties to give public pledges that they will never go to war is to make it much more probable that the United States will have to go to war. It worked that way in 1916, and there is every reason to think that it will work that way again. The cast-iron pledges will be heard not only in the United States but in Berlin, Rome, Moscow and Tokio. They will provide the warmongers with exactly the argument that they most need to overcome the reluctance of the more moderate people.

If American politicians succeed in convincing the adventurers in those four capitals that, except in case of a direct military attack on the United States or in the Caribbean, the United States will under no circumstances ever go to war, they will have misled them into taking chances that otherwise they may hesitate to take. They will have invited Berlin, Rome, Moscow and Tokio to make the European war world war, and by that they will have made it infinitely more difficult for the United States to keep out of war.

Might Be Tragic To Play Politics With U. S. Security

I do not suppose that considerations of this sort are likely to weigh with party strategists or with candidates when they are thoroughly intoxicated with the greatest ambition.

HOW YOU CAN GET A $100 LOAN

IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $6.43 A MONTH

Loans made without endorsers—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Quick, private service.

Do you want to get a loan quickly and simply? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $300 without endorsers or guarantors, if you can make regular monthly payments. From the table below you may choose the payment plan which fits your own purse. You may repay a small amount each month. Or you may make larger payments in order to pay up sooner.

Choose your own payment plan. Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will find, for instance, that monthly payments of $9.77 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.43 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

says JIMMIE KELLY,
Champion Motor-cycle Racer
and Enthusiastic Camel Smoker

ON A MOTOR-CYCLE I GO FOR SPEED IN A BIG WAY. BUT I KEEP MY SMOKING ON THE SLOW-BURNING SIDE WITH CAMELS. THAT WAY I GET A LOT OF 'EXTRAS'—IN MILDNESS, COOLNESS, FLAVOR—AND CAMEL'S SLOW WAY OF BURNING MEANS EXTRA SMOKING PER PACK

ON THE FAST SIDE—A 50-mile-an-hour skid, and Jimmie Kelly (No. 43) whips into the lead on the ocean beach at Daytona. On a motor-cycle Jimmie Kelly is a riding champion, but when it comes to cigarettes, this record-breaking driver is on the slow side... the slow-burning Camel side.

CHAMPION Jimmie Kelly (left) is just one of thousands of experienced smokers who have discovered that Camel's slower way of burning means several definite advantages. Being slower-burning, Camels are free from the drying, uncomfortable qualities of excess heat. They give you extra mildness and extra coolness... always so welcome. Slower burning makes the most of the full, rich flavor of Camel's costlier tobaccos. Camels give you extra flavor... don't tire your taste. The extra smoking in Camels is a matter of the smokers' experience as well as of impartial laboratory record. So get more pleasure per puff and more puffs per pack. Get Camels.

SMOKERS:
SAVE THE COST OF THE STATE CIGARETTE TAX

Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See panel at right.) When you are a Camel smoker, you get this unique economy—and all the extra enjoyment of cooler, milder smoking—the fragrance and delicate taste of finer, more costly tobaccos.

“ON THE SLOW SIDE”—That’s Jimmie Kelly’s way—and the way of millions of other smokers—of saying that he prefers the slower-burning cigarette... Camel. “That’s where the ‘extras’ are in cigarette pleasure and value,” explains Jimmie (above).

SLOWER-BURNING CAMELS GIVE YOU

- EXTRA MILDNESS
- EXTRA COOLNESS
- EXTRA FLAVOR

● In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

SENDING A NEWSPAPER TO JAIL

Upon request the St. Louis Post-Dispatch has provided the Post-Crescent with a complete file covering a period of about five weeks and furnishing the details of its controversy with a circuit judge at St. Louis which has nearly turned Missouri upside down and made itself felt elsewhere.

The contempt case arose out of two editorials discussing a putrid condition in local affairs. On this page under "Opinions of Others" the more important of these editorials is printed.

Briefly the facts were these: One Nick was a St. Louis racketeer who had muscled in to run the movie union. On the eve of signing up a new wage agreement Nick's lawyer, a state assemblyman named Brady and called "Putty Nose" because of a distinguishing characteristic, was paid $10,000 in cash by movie house owners to see to it that the wage scale was kept the same. The movie owners had nothing to do directly with Nick but after the payment of the money Brady's agreement concerning the wage scale was kept and threatened troubles disappeared.

When this information leaked out Nick and Brady were arrested on a charge of conspiracy to extort. They were granted separate trials, a matter of procedure, and Nick went to trial first. After the evidence was all in Judge Rowe directed the jury to find Nick not guilty on the ground that there was no connection in the evidence between Putty Nose Brady and Nick and no proof that Nick had received any of the money.

This itself created quite a stir but nothing to what arose later when Brady went to trial before the same judge. The judge, in fact, took a laboring oar in having the case dismissed without trial on the ground that the prosecutor had no substantially important evidence in addition to that produced at the Nick trial.

But it is necessary to go back and pick up another thread in the case. The operator's union after it learned about the bribery money kicked Nick out and started suit to recover the $10,000 bribe money upon the ground that it belonged to the union and that the law would create the fiction of making Nick a trustee for the benefit of the men he had so flagrantly betrayed. Judge Oakley, another St. Louis circuit judge, heard this civil case for damages and on the day after Judge Rowe dismissed the criminal case against Putty Nose Brady he filed a decision in favor of the movie union and against Nick for the $10,000.

Then it was that the outraged feelings of the Post-Dispatch produced the editorial appearing elsewhere on this page. And thereafter Judge Rowe cited the newspaper for contempt, found it guilty, fined it heavily and sentenced the responsible members of its editorial staff to prison for 20 days.

But, as developed in the arguments on the contempt trial, there was an important distinction between the Rowe decision and the Oakley decision that the Post-Dispatch had not sensed. Strange as it may, and always will, appear to the layman, contrary decisions may actually be made upon the same evidence but when the parties find themselves in different positions and the nature of the proceedings raise different presumptions.

In both the criminal and civil trials neither Putty Nose Brady nor Nick took the stand. Neither was ever questioned. Neither ever offered a syllable of evidence. It was brought out at the contempt trial that the laws of Missouri like those of the rest of the states protect accused persons in criminal cases but not in civil cases and that the failure to take the stand did no harm to the defendant's case in the criminal cases but raised the presumption of concealment in the civil case. It was likewise developed that the Oakley decision did not require the same great burden of proof necessary in the criminal trials before Judge Rowe.

But be these publicists and arguments what they are the controversy is quite likely to result in a reconsideration of the right of courts to punish those making honest criticism, however mistaken, and a criticism that is not made in the courtroom but in the ordinary course of the affairs of the critic.

No one reasonably disputes the right of a court to punish every contemptuous action occurring in a courtroom. Courts could not long function without this power. But the extent to which so-called constructive contempts, that is contempts happening out of the presence of the court, shall react needs redefining because it has in fact been employed blindly, harshly and technically.

If, as claimed by Judge Rowe, the newspaper missed an actual distinction between the two cases it was outlandish to enter a severe punishment for failure to add a fact the newspaper would be glad to include upon learning of its omission.

SENATOR WHEELER'S CANDIDACY

A great many people have looked upon Senator Wheeler of Montana as an enlightened Progressive, that is, a practical man of integrity, possessing the ability to put forward looking programs into workable shape.

By the same token, of course, he could not be a parlor Socialist, a mumble-jumble visionary, a brain trustor nor a torpedoer of our judicial system.

About the only thing we have noticed concerning the senator which is subject to criticism has been his deference toward the President, a statement that he would not be a candidate "if Mr. Roosevelt is." That looked more like the white feather than anything we ever noticed about Senator Wheeler.

If Mr. Roosevelt is a candidate for a third term it is all the more important that men, two-fisted, decent men of brain, power and integrity like the Montanan get out and fight him.

Of course, as Mr. Wheeler said, "Roosevelt can get the nomination and there is no use kidding oneself about that," but the men who have been the really great leaders in this country and whose leadership has taken the people over the highest and most windswept barrens, are those who increased their determination and their efforts the more heavily the odds seemed to be against them.

Senator Wheeler did a splendid job for America when he fought the effort to make the supreme court a tail on the President's kite, a copy of Hitler's People's Court. When that fight was going on the odds seemed very big in Mr. Roosevelt's favor. Although the President got a little support from some respectable sources he had the combined support of every potent in the country that has been gnawing its teeth on the structure of American liberty every time it got a chance.

What Senator Wheeler needs is more heart.

WHAT MIGHT LEONARDO HAVE WROUGHT?

Leonardo da Vinci painted a smile on the lips of Mona Lisa that has intrigued every generation since. And he painted the Last Supper for a Milan cathedral that has been the cynosure of human eyes during all the intervening centuries.

The recent Mussolini order directing the transfer to New York of the models of 175 inventions of this great artist and architect to be shown at the Museum of Science and Industry may tend to give some more accurate comprehension of the remarkable mental achievement of this man of the long ago.

For da Vinci modeled an armored car and other engines of destruction. He modeled an airplane, a steam cannon, even a submarine. He was an artist and he was also an Edison. He was practical enough to devise an alarm clock and to make an oil press that would gain for the olive pickers every last drop of oil.

The notebooks he left, his sketches and drawings show how vast and versatile were the enterprises that yielded to the orderliness of his brain. And his letters disclose how furious he became, how he stormed and raged, at constant royal orders directing him to employ his genius in the building of fortifications and the designing of instruments of destruction to raze other fortifications.

The century that has just passed that has seen so much of progress has also seen relatively little of war. The greatest progress the world has ever known was made while the great nations rested their arms and their scientists worked out bewitching inventions in comfort and utility and concocted chemicals to destroy the hidden enemies of mankind that are concealed in disease.

It may be a great matter for musing to walk past those da Vinci models dating from the time of Columbus and speculate upon the progress this stumbling race of humans might have made had hatred, envy and intolerance been more firmly held in check.

Opinions of Others

JUDGE OAKLEY: THESE MEN ARE GUILTY! Did ever rulings in the Circuit Court of St. Louis on two successive days stand out in sharper, starker, more astounding contrast?

Monday gave us that burlesque on justice, "The Amazing Case of Putty Nose." In the court of Judge Thomas J. Rowe Jr. yesterday, we had justice which was the real article in the court of Judge Ernest F. Oakley.

One day, law and order are made a laughing stock. The next day, in another courtroom, the force of the law strikes with lightning-like retribution.

No case, said Judge Rowe. No case against Putty Nose. Just as there was no case against John P. Nick.

Oh, Nick might be a known racketeer. He might be a thug, who ruled the movie operators' union through coercion and strong-arm methods. He and Putty Nose might have teamed together in a shakedown. They might have stung the movie theater operators before the old wage scale for operators was extended. Payment of $10,000 to Putty Nose might have been testified to under oath. Yet no case. No case against Nick. No case against Putty Nose.

No case at all—that was what Judge Rowe said. So, having kept Nick's case from going to the jury, he now stopped Putty Nose's trial before a jury could be selected. No use finding out how Putty Nose's lawyers could defend him after having put the blame for the $10,000 payment on Putty Nose when they defended Nick.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—The Pullman company and the New York Central railroad may not know it yet, but they are in for some trouble with the justice department over the wreck of the Lake Shore Limited, which killed 30 people the other day when it failed to take a curve near Little Falls, N. Y.

Strange as it seems, it is the anti-trust division of the justice department which is investigating the wreck and may take criminal action.

It may seem a long jump from safety precautions to trust-busting, but what hard-hitting Thurman Arnold of the anti-trust division is interested in, is the monopoly operations of the Pullman company.

His investigators are checking up on whether the Pullman company was using top-heavy cars which could not make the curve, instead of new, low-slung cars. Particularly, justice department investigators are checking on whether the Pullman company is working in conjunction with the Brill Car Manufacturing company to hold down the production of low-slung cars because of the glut of top-heavy cars already manufactured.

If after proper investigation, the justice department feels that it has a case, the matter will be placed before a grand jury.

JOHNNY MOVES UP

Johnny Roosevelt, youngest and only merchant son of the president, has been promoted. The Filene department store in Boston, for which he went to work several years ago as a stock boy, has made him manager of a new branch in Winchester, Mass. This is one of the most rock-ribbed Republican strongholds in New England. Out of a population of 16,000 there are only 400 registered Democrats.

Despite the town's ardent GOPism, Johnny, according to sales records, is doing very well. Personally popular, he is proving a big attraction not only to the townsfolk, but to outlying customers.

Note—More than any of the other Roosevelt children, Johnny resembles and takes after his mother.

Everyone knew about the two telegrams sent by Sam Rayburn and young Representative Lyndon Johnson to settle the row between Texas Garnerites and the Roosevelt third termers. However, there was more to those telegrams than appeared on the surface.

Only insiders caught the significance, but those two wires also disclosed that E. B. Germany, state Democratic chairman and tough-talking leader of the "stop-Roosevelt" bloc, had been bounced as manager of the Garner campaign.

There was no formal announcement. The Garnerites said nothing about it and neither did the New Dealers, to whom Germany has been a red flag for months. But the tip-off was the way in which the telegrams were addressed.

They were sent to "Myron Blalock, Garner Manager." This was the first time this title had been applied to him. In the past, the title "manager" has been used exclusively by Germany.

Germany's exit was one of the chief demands of the New Dealers and a big victory for them. Blalock, former state chairman and smart politician, is a middle-of-the-roader. He is a close friend of Garner and Rayburn and at the same time on good terms with the New Dealers. He has been for Garner, but not for Germany's "stop-Roosevelt" tactics.

Another victory of the New Dealers was the assurance that all their leaders—including Under Secretary of Interior Alvin Wirtz, Lyndon Johnson, Maury Maverick, and others, would be given places on the Texas delegation to the convention.

Also, the compromise choice picked to head the Texas delegation was Rayburn. Soft-spoken Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones busily angled for the place, but the inside boys in both camps preferred Rayburn as the more popular and "safer" choice.

A striking revelation of what the president is thinking about his job and his successor was given at a recent White House press conference. Roosevelt was talking about government reorganization, and made the point that there should be simplification of administration in order to relieve the chief executive of handling reports from a multitude of agencies.

He said that he spent more time reading reports than any president within the memory of man, then added an expression of confidence in his own endurance. Most people, remarked the president, could not do it.

Here a newsmen threw in a question with a third-term inference: "Do you know anybody else who could do it?"

Roosevelt's reply was an inferential comment on the capacity of an older man to carry the burden—that he was afraid some people would die under the strain. But he added an alternative: that they might do as some other presidents have done; namely, just avoid doing the work.

DIPLOMATIC ORPHANS
The group of diplomats "Without-a-County" is steadily increasing. First was the Austrian minister, then the Czech, then the Albanian, then the Polish ambassador, now the Danish minister, next the Norwegian, and soon, perhaps, the Swedish.

The Austrian legation surrendered to the Germans, but the Czech did not. This makes Colonel Vladimir Hurban the dean of this group of orphan diplomats. He turned the Germans away from his door 13 months ago and has maintained the Czech legation in Washington ever since.

Everybody wonders how Hurban holds on. The answer, in part, is that he is frugal. Before the crisis, when he was receiving for salary and entertainment a monthly check of $1200 to $1500, he gave no parties and saved his money. Since the crisis he has cut expenses and drawn on the savings of the past.

He reduced the size of the legation staff in Washington, also of the consulates in other cities. He cut salaries to a common level. Everybody in the legation and consulates gets $100 a month, plus $25 for each child, up to a maximum of $200 a month. Hurban himself gets only $100 a month—the same as the clerk in the New York consulate.

He can keep himself going on this pittance because of past saving. He pays no rent because the building belongs to the Czech government, and he pays no taxes because as a diplomat he is exempt.

(Copyright, 1940, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)
No use, Putty Nose and Nick go free on criminal charges.
But the law has another side. It has a civil side. On this side, union members, striving energetically to clean house, are suing Nick to recover funds for the union. A case? There is nothing remotely resembling doubt in Judge Oakley's decree. He finds that through Putty Nose, Nick secretly received $10,000 paid by the theater men to Putty Nose. He orders Nick to pay the union $10,000, and Nick and Clyde Wedgewood, union's business agent, together to produce $30,000, a case? Well, rather.
No case, Nick and Putty Nose, says Judge Rowe. Go free.
Cough up, says Judge Oakley. That money isn't yours. Pay it into the treasury of the men you sold out. Pay up and get out and take with you all your henchmen and the "known criminal." You smuggled into the union. Disgorge! Clear out!

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—The answer to Germany's vital dependence on Sweden—why the war moved north—is on the black board in any third-grade arithmetic class. The answer is 30 minus 22.

There has been much idealistic talk from both sides about protecting the weak. It is chaff. Germany knows it and the Allies know it.

The "30" in the problem is Germany's annual demand for iron ore. Germany needs 30,000,000 tons of iron ore a year to maintain her economy.

The "22" is the crux of the desperate situation—the 22,000,000 tons Germany must get outside her borders.

No war can be fought without steel. Armor—plate, shells, gun motors, ships, all require steel in quantity. Certainly the war has increased Germany's need for steel.

Figures for 1938 are the last available. That year Germany imported 22,000,000 tons of iron ore from all over the world—France, Newfoundland, Sweden and elsewhere. In 1938, Germany produced only 7,000,000 tons.

Carl Product 11
Marshall Hermann Goering announced the opening of other German ore deposits as part of his four-year economic plan. The Nazis admitted then that their most extravagant hopes were for a production of 12,000,000 tons.

Hard-headed American commercial attaches abroad remain skeptics. Even stepped-up production—achieved—would be little more than a drop in Germany's steel bucket.

Again, it is a matter of cold arithmetic. Not only the vaunted claims of the superiority of everything on German soil could make German iron ore assay more than 35-40 per cent iron. It just ain't there, and not even a pep talk by Adolf himself can make German steel produce better ore.

Iron ore of 35-40 per cent iron content is marginal ore, tremendously expensive to process, even by efficient German methods. Steelmen figure 45-50 per cent ore is a minimum requirement. American iron ore from the Mesabi range on Lake Superior runs about 60 per cent. Ore from northern Sweden runs 60-67 per cent.

So there is Germany's predicament. Her own low-grade ore won't come within 22,000,000 tons of supplying her steel needs. The rest of the world's ore sources of immediate supply are locked behind the blockade door. Except Russia's, which isn't readily mined.

That's why the German high command was willing to shoot the works on the Scandinavian venture. It meant the loss of much of the Nazi Navy.

They and their navy as the price of Swedish ore.

They've got to have that ore to win this war. No Nazi magic can make 30 minus 22 equal 30.

Germany can tighten her belt and make shift with the oil and food reserves that trickle in the back door up the Danube. But steel must come from Sweden.

Germany knows this. England and France know it as well. That's why the German move north to protect her steel supply lines was met instantly by immediate Allied action.

In the last war, Germany faced virtually the same situation, with the important exception that she had the Alsace-Lorraine steel production to bolster her own and the Swedish supply was not threatened. With that, she held out for four years, until food and other stores were finally exhausted.

But Germany hasn't Alsace-Lorraine this time. It's Sweden or nothing.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO
Monday, May 5, 1930

Stocks rallied sharply in the last half hour of trading on the New York Stock exchange that day as powerful supporting orders were thrown into the market and bears scampered to cover their short commitments. Prices had crumbled under pressure of a new wave of selling earlier in the afternoon.

Despite the fact that the voters of the village of Little Chute balloted 188 to 72 at a special election Saturday to abolish the public high school, the students of that school were planning Monday to appeal to Stanley A. Staid, district attorney, for a ruling as to whether the election was legal. The movement to abolish the public high school was the result of the cutting down of state aid which the school received and also the establishment of St. John parochial high school.

25 YEARS AGO

Monday, May 10, 1915

A lion belonging to Daniel Kowalek, 1401 Second street, laid an egg that measured 6 inches across and 8 inches the long way.

Cars having an aggregate value of more than $150,000 were to be displayed in the auto show Wednesday. Forty to fifty different models were to be on exhibit.

Arrangements were made that morning for a meeting of the industrial commission and the city council to be held the following afternoon at which the former was to ask for a new vocational school building. It was agreed that quarters in the Post building were overcrowded.

"TSK, TSK, HIS FEVER LOW AGAIN—NEEDS ANOTHER SHOT"

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Madison—Because of their inability upon eliminating any possibility of endorsing candidates, Progressives can expect that their Wisconsin Rapids convention will draw less interest than the Republican meeting later in the month. Yet the Wisconsin Rapids meeting on May 19 is a piece of important political news because it may furnish the answers to some important questions being posed hereabouts now.

Political rumors, flitting from tongue to tongue with astonishing rapidity, are hard to stop and as hard to track down. One such is the persistent story that Senator LaFollette will throw his party label—either Democratic or Republican, according to the various tellers of the tale.

The May 19 rally ought to supply the answer, and those who know something about Progressive politics predict now as they have been predicting all winter that LaFollette will definitely and unequivocally run as a Progressive, although it is unlikely that he will do anything to scare away such Republican and Progressive votes which may come to him.

FOR GOVERNOR?
To the party rank and file the paramount question, however, is the identity of the man who will be the head of the state ticket this year, and the boys will come to Wisconsin Rapids with the intention of getting some clues. It is important generally, because it is conceivable that the character of the Progressive opposition this year will have a bearing on the prospects of the capital Republicans for reelection. It might be said that the Progressives' chances will be best with a moderate, as against the left-wingers personified by former Mayor Hoan, whose name is mentioned with increasing frequency in the party.

About all that can be said about the outcome of the present intraparty contest for governorship honors, however, is that there is a large quantity of timber, although some of it is of unknown quality. Moreover, the Wisconsin Rapids meeting will very probably see some culling of the list, which besides Hoan, today includes these men:

Orland S. Loomis, former attorney general, with a record of service in the legislature identified chiefly in the Progressive power fight.

John Thiel, Dodge county lawyer, local party leader, and director of the state tax commission for a brief period under LaFollette.

Harold Stafford, northwestern Wisconsin lawyer, prominent LaFollette campaigner and advisor, but a man whose official experience has been limited to a couple of terms in the Chippewa Falls courthouse as county prosecutor.

Senator Phil Nelson of Douglas county, outstanding Progressive lawmaker in 1939, a rough and tough campaigner of experience and aptitude, but whose right to claim honors is clouded by his belated conversion to the Progressive party.

Merlin Hull, veteran office-holder, present western Wisconsin congressman, farm leader and editor, who is so friendly with Republicans that a county G.O.P. committee in his district recently came within an ace of endorsing him for reelection to the house.

Paul Alfonsi, fiery assembly Progressive general, former speaker, orator, a man who is probably more courageous and more consistent than most top rank Progressives, but in whom geography and nationality will prove to be important disadvantages politically.

William T. Evjue, party publicist

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

BREATHING
Any one who has poor circulation, whether it be only "functional" or a manifestation of organic heart disease, should first of all learn how to breathe, or rather how not to breathe, for animals and untutored savages breathe normally or naturally and efficiently; only misguided folks attempt to breathe in the ridiculous manner taught or suggested by ignorant coaches, physical trainers, vocal instructors, beauty experts, and the like.

Functioning, contraction or working of the main breathing muscle, the diaphragm, which partitions the trunk into the thorax or chest cavity and the abdomen or lower body cavity and is in the form of an inverted bowl or a tarpaulin, flattens the diaphragm down, pressing upon stomach, liver, gall-bladder, spleen, pancreas and intestines and causing the front wall of the abdomen, the belly, to bulge or expand; at the same time the increased pressure of the tarpaulin squeezes considerable blood out of the voluminous network of blood vessels in the abdomen. Presently we'll see where that blood goes.

The flattening down of the domed-shaped roof of the abdomen and floor of the chest cavity enlarges the capacity of the chest and lowers pressure within the chest. Hence air enters the lungs. Just try to associate in mind these things with inspiration, inhaling, taking in air:

1. Contraction of the domed-shaped diaphragm
2. Increase of chest capacity
3. Downward pressure on abdomen
4. Bulging of belly as the inflated tarpaulin
5. Squeeze on organs and blood vessels in abdomen. Remember these are all the natural effects of normal function of the diaphragm.

Of course other muscles are used in breathing, some with ordinary quiet breathing, more with forced or hard breathing, but the way the diaphragm works is all one needs to know about breathing, for health and physical efficiency.

In order to visualize natural breathing it is necessary to rid the mind completely of the wrong conceptions inculcated by the former tin soldier posture, the lords of the comic opera buff, the straight front corset of yesterday, the concave belly in the caricatures of fashion designers and fat-off fakers.

Indeed the only purpose of and reason for conscious attention to breathing and the practice of natural breathing ("Belly Breathing" exercise—described in monograph available on request if you inclose stamped envelope bearing your address) is to release the artificial and unnatural interference with or inhibition of breathing imposed by bad habits which have grown out of such wrong conceptions.

Almost universally people breathe most efficiently when asleep. Speaking of sleep, Belly Breathing, many who practice it find, frequently brings blessed relaxation and sleep to fussy budgets who, without apparent cause, get into bed merely to wrestle with Morpheus.

PSORIASIS
Please give some advice on the treatment of psoriasis. I have had it for years.

And reformer, who enjoys mention of his name, but denies steadily that he could be interested.

Walter Graunke, Wausau, bell-cow and stentorian, but who has never been in high office, and lives pretty far north.

Henry Gunderson, former Lieutenant governor and tax commissioner, who asks no man when he wants something, and who was so eager to run that he told potential opponents about it almost a year ago.

It is a long list, and after a preview at Wisconsin Rapids, the Progressive machine will begin the job of selection.

I figure that Gallahue's victory in the Kentucky derby showed in a way that some improvement in the breed of owners and trainers was as much needed as improvement of the breed of horses. Dozens of 'em were so scared stiff of Bimelech that they started running out of the race in midwinter.

They must feel pretty small potatoes today when they realize that a woman who had courage enough to give her horse a chance ran away with the derby.

There were dozens of candidates that had shown as much as Gallahue, and some that had done more. But their owners read all the publicity about Bimby and went cold all over. Their horses weren't anywhere near as scared as their owners, but, of course, they couldn't read.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars might have kept her horse in anyhow, but when Roy Waldron, a darned smart young trainer, told her that Gallahue had a chance if he got the breaks, she was dead game. From all the ballyhoo about Bimelech you would have thought he was a pair of horses instead of just one.

And I ain't saying anything against Bimby. He is a great hoss. And he may still prove one of the greatest of all time. But anything he had more American owners and sports enough to venture it, instead of running to cover when one horse gets all the hot notices.

CONTRACT FISHING
Editor Post-Crescent—In your issue of May 2, 1940, you carried an article entitled, "2500 tons of Rough Fish removed from lake in 5 years."

The second sentence of the second paragraph reads, in part, "while a contract fisherman employed by the department took an additional million pounds from the lake."

We feel that by your use of the word, "employed," you give your readers a wrong impression of the facts, as we are not paid by the department for doing this work. Actually, twenty per cent of our gross receipts are paid to the department. We also pay for the services of a supervising warden.

In our operations in Lake Winnebago for the week ending April, 27th, 1940, we removed 26 tons of sheephead which were sold as mink feed at 12c per pound. The department share is $156.00.

We have the only contract fisherman operating in Lake Winnebago during all of the past five years, are certain that we are the "contract fisherman" alluded to in the above mentioned article, and, are writing, knowing that you will be glad to correct the wrong impression created.

Wisconsin's Adventures and Advancements Are Chronicled in Book by Dr. William F. Raney

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD
WISCONSIN: A STORY OF PROGRESS. By William F. Raney (Prentice-Hall)
Undoubtedly many Wisconsin newspapermen, teachers, students, writers and other citizens curious about the three centuries of life, work and progress represented in the state in which they live and of which they are a part have often deplored the lack of an accurate, complete, and up-to-date general history of the commonwealth.

WRITES HISTORY OF STATE

Dr. William F. Raney, (above) professor of history at Lawrence college, is the author of a new volume on Wisconsin history recently published by a New York house. The book is entitled "Wisconsin: A Story of Progress."

Clapper Plays Methodist Plea For Recall of Envoy to Vatican

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Nothing could have been more unfortunately timed than the action of the general conference of the Methodist church in urging that President Roosevelt recall Myron C. Taylor, his personal envoy to the Vatican.

This brickbat was heaved at Mr. Roosevelt on the very afternoon when he was engaged in trying to persuade Italy not to enter the war and thereby spread the area of hostilities into the Mediterranean, an important highway of commerce for the whole world.

The suspicious Methodists are fighting a bogeyman of their own imagination, the same one that they fought when Al Smith ran for president in 1928 and was suspected by some of them of plotting to bring the pope over to run the country. They have allowed that ancient fear to lead them now, as if moved by a kind of kid-glove bigotry, into sabotaging a hopeful gesture in a desperate world. For it was only as a hopeful gesture that Mr. Taylor, a retired chairman of the United States Steel corporation, a Quaker in faith, was sent to the Vatican as a personal representative with the rank of ambassador. It was a Christmas eve gesture, made public on Sunday morning, Dec. 24, and the president said: "Only by friendly association between the seekers of light and the seekers of peace everywhere can the forces of evil be overthrown."

When the present pope, as Cardinal Pacelli, visited the United States nearly two years ago, he spent some time with President Roosevelt. It was then that Mr. Roosevelt recognized in Cardinal Pacelli a statesman, a man who saw clearly that there were closing down over Europe the most despicable enemies of all that is fine in mankind. It is no small matter of sect. It is not even a question of religion. It is a matter of the spirit, as when the light was extinguished in Finland and Norway.

On sure, this war involves trade and many other practical matters. But it also involves the destruction in Europe of the right of men to think, to speak, to worship, to live insofar as their capacities enable them to, within their inner sanctuaries.

Whatever one may say about the tribute which the church exacts from the poor millions of its faith, in this moment the Vatican symbolizes the sanctuary of the spirit in Europe, the only sanctuary left in Europe. The pope is the living symbol of what surviving spiritual remnants remain, and his tiny island in this ocean of hate and killing.

Why should not the president of the United States send a personal particular reader, however, Dr. Raney has completed an impressive self-chosen assignment here. The story of the state is long, uniformly and intensely interesting. Its leaders, and its achievements, are many and great, and to encompass that story in a single library volume must surely win approbation, besides offering encouragement for further exploration in specific fields rich in general human interest not only to Wisconsin folk but to others.

Dr. William F. Raney, whose book "Wisconsin: A Story of Progress" is the outcome of a long interest in the history of the state, is nearing the end of 20 years of service at Lawrence college.

He joined the college faculty in the fall of 1920 as professor of French. Two years later he was made a member of the history department.

About 10 years ago, Dr. Raney experimented with a college course in the history of Wisconsin. During the last 15 years, he has spoken frequently in Appleton and nearby cities on subjects connected with local and state history.

For the first semester of 1931-32, he was granted a leave of absence and spent an unbroken five months in Madison gathering material on Wisconsin history.

The actual writing of the book was often interrupted and delayed and for considerable periods was laid aside altogether. The final revision was completed last autumn and the book was published in March by Prentice-Hall, Inc., of New York.

Dr. Raney does not regard the book as marking the end of his work in Wisconsin history. He will continue to offer a course in that subject at Lawrence and plans further investigation and writing in the field.

Born in Nebraska

The Lawrence professor was born at Ragan, a small Nebraska town, in 1890. He received his common and high school education at Hastings, Nebraska, and for three years attended Hastings college, a Presbyterian institution in the same city.

He went to England in 1910 as a Rhodes scholar from Nebraska. In accordance with the Oxford system, he devoted nearly three years to preparation for one final examination in history and related subjects. He received his degree of bachelor of arts from the English university in August of 1913.

At Oxford, Dr. Raney was a member of an 8-oared crew. "I was not on the regular eight, understand. There were 22 colleges at Oxford at that time, each with one or more crews. The best boat represented the university. I was a member of one of the crews at one of the colleges."

During his stay in Europe, the Lawrence professor spent eight or nine months each in France and England. He attended summer

After his return from Europe, he was for three years a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin and at the same time an assistant in the history department. For a year, he held an instructorship in French and in 1919 received his Ph.D. degree.

After leaving Wisconsin, Dr. Raney taught history for one year in the municipal university at Louisville, Ky., and in the fall of 1920 joined the Lawrence college staff.

He has written numerous articles for historical reviews and journals. In 1923, he wrote "Recruiting and Crimping in Canada for the Northern Forces" which was published in the Mississippi Valley Historical Review. In 1920, "The Timber Culture Act" in the proceedings of the Mississippi Valley Historical association.

County Boards to Determine Fate of Assessor Schools

Question of Financing Instruction Will Come Before Officials

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The continuation of the schools of instruction for local assessment officers held annually in past years will be decided by the 71 county boards of Wisconsin, according to Tax Commissioner Elmer E. Barlow.

The schools have been conducted each year for local assessors with a considerable benefit, Barlow said, but the cost is roughly $80,000, and the counties must decide if they are willing to expend that amount of money for the service. If they indicate such willingness, the state department of taxation will continue to sponsor them, he said today.

Barlow said that he would put the question before the various county boards for consideration at their annual spring meetings which begin Tuesday. "This expense is certified to the counties, and must be paid by the taxpayers of the state. No doubt the meetings have value,

Edward Krueger Given Permit to Build Home

Edward L. Krueger, 1501 S. Mason street, Saturday was given a permit by the city building inspector to erect a residence at 302 S. Victoria street. Cost of the home is estimated at $2,800. The house will be 30 feet long and 24 feet wide and will be of frame construction. A permit to build a garage, 20 by 22 feet in size, was given to John D. Melzer, 216 S. Douglas street. Cost of the garage will be approximately $700.

especially to the new assessors," he said.

Numerous Meetings

The cost is relatively high because of the number of such instruction meetings which must be held to accommodate the assessors of approximately 1,900 taxing units in the state, it was explained. All of the essential services which the state department's property tax division rendered to local taxing authorities will be continued, he said, despite the recent reorganization and economy program in the department.

"It is the intention of this department to cooperate and assist in attempting to obtain uniformity of assessment for property of like value throughout the state, but not to order or dictate how these assessments shall be made."

Nathan Burstein of Neenah Is Named President as Council of B'nai B'rith Holds Conference

BY VIOLA HELLERMANN
NATHAN BURSTEIN, Neenah, was named president and Jack Shapiro, Appleton, treasurer, of the Upper Wisconsin Council of B'nai B'rith at its spring conference Sunday at the Conway hotel.

Other officers named were Jack Barenbaum, Two Rivers, vice president; S. S. Welantzik, Stevens Point, secretary; and David Rabinowitz, Sheboygan, member of the general committee of District Grand Lodge No. 6.

Over 300 persons attended the evening banquet at which Rabbi Charles E. Shulman of North Shore Congregation Israel, Glenview, Ill., was the principal speaker.

Author, scholar and world traveler, Rabbi Shulman traced the accomplishments of the Egyptian, Greek and Roman civilizations, declaring that each had died because it lacked character, and declared that Jewish civilization had survived because it was built on character.

"Civilization in the last analysis is character," the speaker explained, "and where there is no character civilization can not endure."

Injustice and slavery were part of the Egyptian, Greek and Roman civilizations, as they are a part of the Nazi system of today, in which the Hitlerites are making slaves of the people they conquer, the rabbi said.

The first injury whenever a wrong is perpetrated against humanity, he went on, is against the Jewish people, whom he called the oldest constant minority on the face of the globe. They have survived, however, because they have built on character.

The Jewish emphasis upon character, the speaker continued, has two divisions, godliness and democracy. It emphasizes the divinity of creation and that every person has been made in the image of God. The democracy expressed in Israel's teachings, he said, played an important part in the building of American democracy. Early American writings are filled with quotations from the prophets, he pointed out.

Tenderness, consideration for human life and desire for peace are other aspects of Jewish character, the lecturer declared.

Rabbi Shulman's address was preceded by a short talk by Marver Bernstein, Wausau, senior at the University of Wisconsin, winner of a $50 award given by the Upper Wisconsin Council of B'nai B'rith to

Audience Joins With Massed Choruses in Community 'Sing' To Close Convention Concert

BY NELL CHAMBERLAIN

GOOD fellowship which is one of the prime purposes of the Wisconsin Association of Male Choruses was in evidence at the fifth annual state concert of the association last night at Lawrence Memorial chapel, for the program, highlighted by the numbers by the massed chorus of 400 men, concluded with an old-fashioned community "sing" which is a tradition of the organization. The audience which nearly filled the remaining seats in the chapel after the singers were seated, joined in the general singing under the direction of J. A. Breese, Oshkosh, and left the building humming and whistling some of the songs they had heard during the evening.

Since the program was broadcast over radio station WTAQ, promptly at 8:10 the members of the eight choruses rose from their seats at both sides of the auditorium and walked quickly to their places on the stage, assembling without confusion or difficulty. A. A. Glockzin, director of Appleton MacDowell Male chorus which acted as host to the "sing," conducted the opening selection, "Salvation" by Benz which is the official song of the Associated Glee Clubs of America, and he also closed the program by leading the massed chorus in "Lift Thine Eyes" by Logan.

Organizations which participated in the concert were the Green Bay Y. M. C. A. Glee club, Negaunee, Mich. Male chorus, Wausau Elks Male chorus, Fond du Lac Elks Male chorus, Appleton MacDowell Male chorus, Stevens Point Shawano Male chorus, and Appleton MacDowell Male chorus.

The second number by the massed chorus was "Laudamus" by Protheroe, conducted by H. O. Numan, director of the Green Bay group, and others followed by "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming" by Foster with Harvey Miller of the Fond du Lac chorus directing; "Hail Bright Abode" from "Tannhauser" by Wagner, conducted by Franklin Krieger of the Wausau group and "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee" by Bach, directed by Eric Albers of the Shawano Male chorus.

Concluding the concert were the following massed numbers: "Cherubim Song" by Bortniansky, directed by J. A. Breese, Oshkosh; "In Flanders Fields" by Merwin, with Norman Knutzen, Stevens Point, directing; "Wayfarer's Night Song" by Martin, with A. W. Nordling, Negaunee, Mich. in charge; and "Lift Thine Eyes" conducted by A. A. Glockzin, Appleton.

Each Unit Performs

For its two selections the 24-man Y. M. C. A. Glee club of Green Bay with Miss Joseph Cleary as accompanist sang "Song of the Open Road" by Malotte and "Bless the Lord, O My Soul," "Choral Prelude" by Homier and a novelty singing march, "Rap-Ple-To-Rouch" by Palmer were the selections by the Negaunee Male chorus, accompanied for which was played by Mrs. Martha S. Birch.

Wausau Elks Male chorus with Mrs. Harold Anderson as accompanist sang "Dedication" by Franz and "On the Sea" by Buck, and the Fond du Lac Elks Male chorus sang "Lassie O'Mine" by Walt and "The Creation" by Richter, the latter being sung a cappella. "Sunrise on the Ganges" by Scarlati and "Ave Maria" by Arcadelt were the numbers by the Appleton MacDowell Male chorus, accompanied by Mrs. Dennis Ehrliche.

A former Lawrence college student, Norman Knutzen, conducted the Central State Glee club of Stevens Point in "Death and the Maiden" by Schubert and "Exaltation" by Gibb. Ula Mae Knutzen was accompanist. "Stanka Rezin" by McMillan was sung by the Shawano Male chorus and Mrs. William Cantwell, Jr. played the accompaniment.

The closing group by an individual chorus was "From the Sea" by MacDowell and "The Shepherdess" by MacMurry, sung by the Appleton MacDowell Male chorus. Cecil Neubecker is accompanist for that group.

During an intermission in the program Ralph A. Tinker announced the results of the election of officers and the choice of Fond du Lac as the next convention city. He paid tribute to A. H. Falk, secretary-treasurer, for his work in behalf of the organization.

'Elizabeth' Scores Literary Triumph With Newest Novel

By Jean Wiley Thickens

"MR. SKEFFINGTON" by Elizabeth. For more than 30 years a new novel by "Elizabeth" has been anticipated with pleasurable excitement by thousands of admirers on both sides of the Atlantic. Her "Enchanted April," "Fraulein Schmidt and Mr. Anstruther" and "Elizabeth and Her German Garden" became classics almost overnight. The author, known only as Elizabeth, was for years the wife of a German count and lived in Pomerania. After his death she returned to England and married Earl Russell, brother of Bertrand Russell.

All of Elizabeth's novels are rich in subtle humor, some of it notably in "The Pastor's Wife" - verges on the caustic and is positively searing in its penetration and understanding of the baser motives of human nature. But Elizabeth is the tolerant sort of person of which, after chuckling over another of her books, one thinks: "I should like to know her." And it is not surprising to learn that she is one of the most admired and beloved women in England today.

Mr. Skeffington's latest success, is a story which will be enjoyed almost equally by men and women. Christopher Morley in "Kitty Foyle," attempting to write and think from a feminine point of view was an obvious and pathetic failure. Elizabeth on the other hand is woman personified. Nor does she spare her sex in her depiction of character for she knows their cattiness, their petty jealousies, their fears and their follies, but she also knows their courage and stamina and the amazing sacrifices they will make for those they love. Women will recognize themselves and their feminine cronies with amused tolerance, men will read the book and "thank God they are not as other men" (for women).

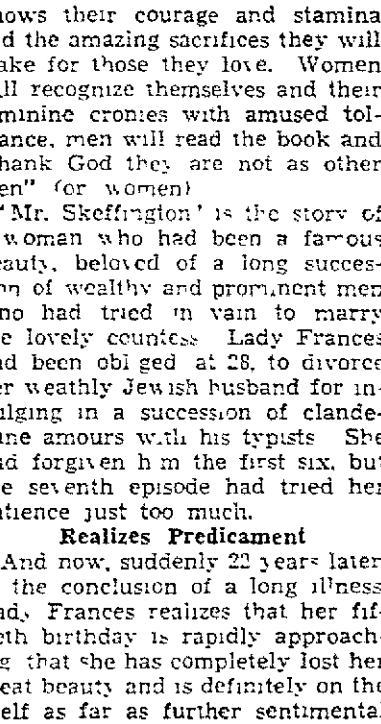

"Mr. Skeffington" is the story of a woman who had been a famous beauty, beloved of a long succession of wealthy and prominent men who had tried in vain to marry the lovely creature. Lady Frances had been obliged at 28, to divorce her wealthy Jewish husband for indulging in a succession of clandestine amours with his typists. She had forgiven him in the first six, but the seventh episode had tried her patience just too much.

And now, suddenly 22 years later at the conclusion of a long illness, Lady Frances realizes that her fiftieth birthday is rapidly approaching and that she has completely lost her great beauty and is definitely on the shelf as far as further sentimental episodes are concerned. This is a chattering realization but she decides to look up some of her erstwhile suitors to see what life has done to them and if any of them are still pining for her. As she sees in the eyes of each one the shock they experience at her loss of youth and beauty, she becomes more and more depressed. At the crucial moment when she is frantically wondering how she is going to fill the lonely years ahead, she learns that her former husband, Mr. Skeffington, whose presence has been haunting her of late, being a Jew residing in Austria, has been stripped of his great wealth and blinded by the Nazis but has finally managed to escape to England, a penniless outcast. The outcome is obvious and most refreshing and in the final chapter Elizabeth exhibits her greatest skill as a teller of tales.

Some of the cleverest lines in the book deserve to be read more than once, for example: "the nearest Mr. Skeffington had ever got to a fleshly temptation was her hot water bottle. She supposed it would be caused by a fleshly temptation because of the extreme pleasure she felt whenever she gave way to it. Sometimes, in moments which she was sure would be called wanton, she would imagine that a husband might perhaps be a glorified hot water bottle, deliciously warming one's cold and lonely bed." Without doubt, "Mr. Skeffington" is another of the author's literary triumphs and deserves a place on the book shelves of every discriminating reader.

400 Men Sing in Mass Concert at Chorus Conclave

Eight Wisconsin, Michigan Groups Take Part in Performance

BY NELL CHAMBERLAIN
White-haired men rubbed shoulders with boys in their teens as 400 pairs of eyes focused on the man occupying the center of the stage during rehearsal of the massed chorus of the Wisconsin Association of Male Chorus Sunday afternoon at Lawrence Memorial chapel. Proof of the universal appeal of music was there in the faces of the singers, for they ranged from college students—there was one college club from a state teacher's college, to groups of business and professional men, some of rather advanced age.

First one director and then another took over the baton to lead the massed chorus of 400 voices gathered from all parts of Wisconsin and even one town in Michigan, and the eight individual choruses ran through their own numbers with their own directors putting them through their paces in preparation for the public concert. Getting 400 men on and off the stage with a minimum of lost effort would seem quite an undertaking, but this matter was arranged efficiently by giving each man a seat ticket which he was to have for the evening. The men were rehearsed in the arrangement they were to carry out in going onto the stage for the massed chorus numbers and also for the individual club appearances, after brief instructions the entire 400 took their places on the stage in just a few seconds over two minutes.

Since all member clubs of the Wisconsin association are required to learn a certain number of the same songs and since a common repertoire is chosen each season, the rehearsals were mostly a matter of arranging the voices in their proper groupings and getting accustomed to singing in such a large group and under a strange director.

The newest member of the association, the Neagane, Mich., Male chorus, which appeared in the state "sing" for the first time last night, had 100 per cent attendance of 15 members in Appleton, the group having driven 215 miles to be present. The group has 42 members and its accompanist and director. One of its members, Charles Leckron, Jr., was met in Appleton by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leckron, Sr. and his sister, Meredith, of Chicago.

While the men were engaged at the rehearsal, registration at the Elks club, where a few guests of the Wisconsin Association of Male Chorus members who acted as hosts for the state "sing." The women dropped in at the Elks club where card tables had been set up in the auditorium for those who wished to have a few hands of bridge. Others just chatted and had a cup of tea while a few walked down to Lawrence chapel to look in on their husbands hard at work.

The women were greeted at the tea by a committee of local women headed by Mrs. Armin Albrecht, and tea was poured by Mrs. Albert A. Glockin and Mrs. Albrecht. About 125 women attended.

Mrs. Glockin entertained the women at the Elks club. Mrs. Albrecht, wife of the president of Appleton MacDowell Male chorus and Mrs. A. H. Falk, wife of the secretary-treasurer of the Wisconsin association, at dinner at her home, 316 W. Prospect avenue, and at the same time the conductors, governors and officers of the state association held a dinner at the Copper Kettle restaurant followed by a business meeting.

President Re-elected
Ralph A. Tinker, Waupun, was returned to office as president of the association. A. H. Falk, Appleton, was re-elected secretary-treasurer, and Dr. John S. West, Fond du Lac, was named vice president to succeed Norman E. Knutson, Stevens Point. The latter, together with J. A. Brooks, Oshkosh, Tinker and Falk were named to the board of governors of the Mid-West Conference of Male Chorus, which will meet the last week in June at Cherokee lodge White Lake, Mich.

Armin E. Albrecht, Appleton, was elected national governor, to act in contact with the state and national organizations, and A. C. Stein, Appleton, was appointed chairman of the common repertoire committee for 1941.

DIRECTORS 'TALK IT OVER' AT CONVENTION OF CHORUSES

"Talking it over" were the eight directors of singing groups participating in the fifth annual concert of the Wisconsin Association of Male Chorus held Sunday night at Lawrence chapel, shown in the upper picture. This was a scene during the rehearsal Sunday afternoon at the chapel when a massed chorus of 400 voices practiced under the direction of each of the eight directors for its appearance at the evening concert. The directors are, from left to right, Franklin Krieger of Wausau Elks Male chorus; A. A. Glockin of Appleton MacDowell Male chorus; Norman Knutson of Central State Glee club, Stevens Point; and A. W. Nordling of the Neagane, Mich. Male chorus back row, Eric Albers of Shawano Male chorus; J. A. Breese of Appleton Male Singers of Oshkosh; H. O. Numan of the Green Bay Y.M.C.A. Glee club; and Harvey Miller of the Fond du Lac Elks Male chorus.

For the first time in the five years that the association of glee clubs has been holding its state concert, the ladies were entertained Sunday afternoon at Elks club while their husbands were rehearsing. A tea was held from 3 to 5 o'clock, and the lower picture was taken as a group of Appleton hostesses had a cup of tea drive: Mrs. A. H. Falk, 210 W. Commercial street; Mrs. Alfred Wickesberg, 814 E. Atlantic street; Mrs. Melvin Knoke, 1213 N. Appleton street; Mrs. Armin Albrecht, 1424 S. Outagamie street; Mrs. Karel Richmond, 725 W. Summer street; and Mrs. Wilmer Slach, 147 River drive. Miall said German bombers had reduced villages in the area from Grong to the Swedish frontier to "just little flat heaps of wreckage."

--And It All Happened From Mistaken Exchange of Coats

Clem Antonetti, 25, 320 E. Wisconsin avenue, made sure he had enough security to make certain the return of his coat which was taken by mistake at an Appleton tavern early Saturday morning, but his act caused him to spend the weekend in the city clink and this afternoon he was to be arraigned in municipal court on a disorderly conduct charge.

When Clem got ready to leave the tavern, he found that someone had taken his coat by mistake. He took the coat left by the other person and found from letters in the pocket that it belonged to Russell Jensen, Chicago fur salesman, who was staying at an Appleton hotel.

Clem made his way to the hotel, found that Jensen was not in his room and then proceeded to the room, letting himself in with a key he found in the pocket of the coat.

Clem, on the other hand, this morning had more than just his coat to worry about.

District Attorney Paul Roman and Sheriff Duncan R. Campbell investigated and said there would be no inquest. Dr. M. O. Boudry was called in the absence of Dr. A. N. Christofferson, coroner, and pronounced her dead.

The Papes were married Feb. 27, 1939.

Destroyer Is Sunk, British Admission

Shot down and the transports came through "untouched."

The Afriid, fifth British destroyer lost since the start of the Norwegian campaign, was acting as flotilla leader of the escort and carried 219 men.

An unofficial military source reported that British troops in northern Norway were closing in on the German garrison, estimated at between 3,000 and 4,000 men, holding the arctic port of Narvik, but that operations of necessity were proceeding slowly and that the immediate capture of the port was not to be expected.

Britain's task of organizing neutral nations to resist Germany has become increasingly difficult in face of the Nazi triumph in southern Norway, in the opinion of informed diplomatic observers.

These sources declare two doubts are growing in the minds of neutrals, doubts encouraged by German propaganda.

County Board to Select Chairman At May Session

Six New Supervisors Will Be Seated at Organization Meeting Tuesday

Highlighting the organization session which opens the spring meeting of the Outagamie county board at the courthouse Tuesday will be the seating of six new supervisors and selection of the board chairman.

Rumors indicate that a group of supervisors will enter a candidate in opposition to Senator Mike Mack, Shiocton, present chairman. Supervisor John Bottensek, Dale, has been mentioned as a possible candidate of the opposing faction. Senator Mack is confined to St. Elizabeth hospital, recovering from injuries received in a traffic accident last week. He suffered a fractured vertebra in the neck when a car driven by Sheriff John Lappen tipped on its side at a curve on Highway 76 near Greenville.

The new supervisors who will be seated are W. H. Becker, town of Greenville; Jacob DeJong, town of Freedom; George Daggert, town of Deer Creek; Henry Vandenberg, Sixth ward, Appleton; Fred N. Calmes, Fourth ward, Appleton, and Charles Scheibler, Eighteenth ward, Appleton.

The spring session is expected to continue four days. Among the items which probably will be before the supervisors are the proposed plan for the care of the county indigent sick drawn up by the Outagamie County Medical society and a request of the Seymour Fair and Driving Park association for an appropriation to erect new buildings at the fair grounds.

DAY or NIGHT CALL 308

"Over 50 Years of Faithful Service"

Should Have Retained His Ace of Spades

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The other day the following hand occurred. I was sitting South:

"South, dealer.
"Neither side vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ 10 8 7

"The bidding:
South West North East
1 no trump Pass 2 clubs Pass
3 no trump Double Pass Pass
Redouble Pass Pass Pass

"Opening lead, jack of hearts.
"My bidding was not very sound, but I took into consideration the fact that my partner is a very conservative bidder. I hold no brief for the redouble.

"I took the first trick, led the jack of clubs, West covered, and that suit was established. I then made a stab at the spade finesse and it held, to my great glee. At this point I could lay down five more tricks and be down one, but the problem was to get the ninth. I played the spade ace on the vague theory that I did not want to be thrown on lead later on. I then went over to the high club in dummy and played a diamond which I covered in my hand with the ten. West cashed his king-jack, returned a heart, and I didn't take another trick. Down 1400!

"Against double dummy defense, I don't see how this hand can be made. If South leads out all his clubs after the spade finesse, West can beat the hand by not discarding a spade. If he discards one spade, three no trump is in, and I think that the proper method of play is for declarer to take four club tricks, then take the spade finesse and then the fifth club trick, in which case the chances are that West would discard a spade. I would appreciate your comments.

"R. W. J., New York."

My correspondent's comment about his own bidding "not being very sound" is quite an understatement, but let's let it pass. The play is so interesting that we have bigger fish to fry.

With the clubs breaking and the spade king on side, the contract could have been fulfilled by exceptionally keen card placing. Admittedly, it would not have been easy, but the following line would have been proof against any defense: Declarer wins the opening lead with the heart king, and returns the club jack. West covers and dummy's king wins. A low diamond is now led and South just covers East's card. Presumably East plays low and the ten spot forces West's queen. West cannot return a heart or a diamond without giving South the ninth trick, hence can make no better lead than a club. Dummy wins and now the spade finesse is negotiated. Declarer does not lay down the spade ace yet! He cashes two more clubs, leaving this situation:

♣ None

WEST
♥ A 10

EAST
♠ K J
♦ J 9 6

SOUTH
♣ A

The holding given West at this point is the best available to him. Now declarer cashes his last club and West is in extremely hot water. If he lets go his low diamond declarer plays the diamond three, establishing the diamond king while retaining control of spades and hearts. If West discards the heart king the lead of the heart six effects the same kind of result. Hence, West's best discard is a spade. But when this is done declarer cashes the spade ace (thereby extracting West's exit card) and then throws West on lead with either heart (the king is the proper trick). West can cash his two heart tricks, but now must give declarer a diamond trick.

It will be observed that the crux of the play is for declarer to pass a diamond into West before taking the spade finesse, and later to retain his spade ace until the psychological moment.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

To beautify her upper chest pretty Rity Hayworth does this famous chest exercise daily.

The trouble with keeping the figure streamlined, many women complain, is that the neck and upper chest get too thin. When this happens they seek a cream to fill in the hollows, but alas they find that cream alone will not do the trick.

If you do slim down your hips and waist and other measurements through dieting and exercise, especially quickly, the chances are your neck, face and upper chest will suffer. At best it is difficult to keep these bones nicely rounded and a quick loss of flesh or a noticeable reduction, does tend to make them more pronounced. When this happens two things must be done—one, nightly massage with a very rich cream, and two, a routine of corrective exercises must be followed daily.

I have seen neck hollows disappear through the correction of poor head and shoulder posture. Look into a mirror as you let your upper body slump a bit, your shoulders slouch and your head fall forward. Notice the hollows deepen at the base of your neck and below your shoulder bones. Then make your spine erect, relax your shoulders and hold your head high (as if you were proud) and notice how miraculously these hollows disappear.

Evening dresses and bathing suits are bound to reveal our upper chests and no woman likes to look scrawny around that area. In fact that section of your body is the base for your pretty head and it should be kept beautiful. And here is how you can do it.

First be conscious of good posture. Limber your upper spine by slowly rotating your head clockwise and counter-clockwise for about five minutes.

Then limber the lower part of your spine by standing erect and placing both hands on your hips. Sway your body from right to left slowly in good rhythm. Then, keeping your waistline as an axis and rotate the upper part of your body as you did your head. Do it slowly and rhythmically, that is what counts. When you get a bit dizzy go clockwise, pause a second or two, and rotate counter-clockwise. This exercise uses practically every muscle in your body and is splendid for a general limbering.

Next comes the chest builder. Touch your finger tips together as you stand erect. Gradually raise your bent arms high as shoulder level. Keep your head high and look straight ahead. Now press your fingertips together and relax them to the count of a slow "one-two." This is a splendid muscle toner for your upper chest and pectoral muscles. It firms your breasts and lifts them higher. If you do the exercise correctly you will feel muscles responding clear to the end of your spine and you are forced to stand in good posture.

Such a routine should take about fifteen minutes a day and it does not matter whether you go through the movements in the morning or at night. But every night you should massage your neck and upper chest generously with a rich cream and as you massage upward with one hand hold your breasts high with the other. This helps to strengthen the muscles, too.

Women Get Rude Shock When They Find Youth Has Faded

BY DOROTHY DIX

It is a queer thing that we do not realize that we are growing old until we virtually have one foot in the grave. We perceive that the aging process is taking place in our friends and acquaintances, and we sigh and say: "How poor Tom has broken!" And "What a pity it is that Lulu has lost her figure and complexion. She was so pretty when she was a girl." But we do not recognize that Time is taking its toll of us and that somehow, somewhere, we have crossed that fatal line that separates youth from age. The little telltale wrinkles about our eyes have come so insidiously, the gray in our hair has crept in so gradually, the roses in our cheeks have paled so gently that we have not even noticed the change in our appearance. To ourselves we are still mere girls and boys until something happens that gives us the jolt of our lives by making us see how we look to other people.

It gives us a shock from which we never recover. No man and woman are ever the same again after the cold, unpalatable truth is forced upon them that no matter how young they seem to themselves, to others they are just an aging couple.

Nobody escapes this devastating experience and after it is over—long, long after it is over—it becomes a plexus blow to one's vanity, and women tell, with laughter, of how they were first awakened from their delusion that they had drunk at the Fountain of Perpetual Youth.

The other day a group of elderly women, who had foregathered for a cup of tea, were telling of the first intimation they had that they were middle-aged. Said one: "Mine came on a sleeping car. I was in my early thirties. I had always had perfect health. I had kept my figure. I could work and play all day and dance all night. I was gay and happy and I felt just as young as I did when I was 16. When I thought of getting middle-aged, it was of something that wouldn't befall me for years and years and years.

"Then one intensely hot day I happened to be making a railway journey. Across the aisle from me was a sickly, tired-looking mother with a sickly, tired-looking baby that fretted and cried. After I had had my lunch I asked the women if she wouldn't let me take care of her baby while she got something to eat, and she gratefully turned the youngster to me.

"After she had tidied herself up and had had a good meal she came back refreshed. She wanted to say something gracious to me and so, as she held out her arms for the child, she said: 'Who's got you baby? Has Grandma got you?' And at those words my youth left me like a garment. I knew I was just another nice, kind, old lady."

"The Good Samaritan always gets it in the neck," observed another woman. "Now my brutal awakening came to me in the casual observer came at the hands of a tactless young girl."

"I married when I was 18 and my husband, unfortunately, lived only a few months. After my first grief had wept itself out and I had accepted the inevitable, I began going

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Many manufacturers are wasting millions of dollars by failing to inject human interest into their advertising copy and radio "commercials." There is no justifiable argument why exposition and "reason why" copy should not be entertaining. Even in the realm of college textbooks, we now realize that a dull, uninteresting volume is a sign that the author doesn't know how to apply the first principles of psychology; namely, how to motivate his audience favorably.

CASE Q-155: Clark J., aged 31, is an advertising executive in Chicago.

"We do a great deal of radio advertising," he commented, "and have had reasonably good success. 'But I feel that there is room for great improvement in the type of programs which we sponsor, as well as in the commercials which the announcer utters at the beginning and end of the 15-minute period."

"Dr. Crane, you teach advertising and salesmanship. What's your opinion in the matter?"

DIAGNOSIS:
The usual listener would gladly have all commercial announcements deleted from the radio programs, for they interfere with the continuity of the playlet, musical numbers or other dramatic presentations.

The usual manufacturer or sponsor, on the contrary, would like to have his name and product mentioned continuously throughout the 15-minute or 30-minute program.

As a result, we have a compromise. The sponsor reluctantly permits the bulk of his 15 minutes to be spent on human interest features, contenting himself with only a few minutes of commercial.

Meanwhile, the public tolerates the commercials because it has to do so. Besides, we realize that the sponsors are footing the bill for radio time, and unless we let them include their commercials, they'll not provide us with any baseball or prize fight broadcasts, music or drama.

Horace Sense in Advertising
If advertising agencies would employ a little more practical psychology, however, they could help eliminate this conflict in viewpoint which now exists between the listening public and the sponsor of the radio advertising program.

It isn't necessary, for example, to make a commercial announcement dry and deadly, or devoid of human interest. It doesn't have to be a monotonous monologue of bizarre superlatives, patting the manufacturer on the back.

There is far too much of the "Little Jack Horner Complex" demonstrated in modern advertising. Manufacturers verbally pat themselves on the back, when the secret of effectively motivating people consists of patting them on the back.

We see an excessive amount of boasting about how long a firm has been in business. We hear a cheap product described as being "marvelous, stupendous, colossal." The public thinks "Phooey!"

Facing Advertising Facts
Recently a radio announcer read in rapid-fire fashion the commercial announcement concluding a radio advertising broadcast about soap flakes.

"They are so thrillingly different," he said in tones which he tried to make romantic.

Many advertising men ridicule the level of intelligence of the general public and say our nation has an average mental age of perhaps 13 or 14 years. Even if so, the public disbelieves such gross exaggerations.

Even a toddler knows that there is nothing "thrilling" about bricks or soap flakes, tooth-paste or flour. And the popularity of radio quiz programs and educational columns in the newspapers, shows that the public has a very much underrated intellectual interest.

For 3 months, I was on the Mutual and Columbia chains, conducting radio dramatizations of these Case Records. Guests were permitted in the radio stations to witness these performances. But these guests immediately walked out when the commercial was started at the end of the 15-minute session.

The sponsor spent $1,000 per week on the talent alone, not counting radio time, but wasted much of this investment by running second-rate commercials, which were quickly typed off at the advertising agency, and not psychologically checked or tested!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

Child Who Doesn't Progress Requires Special Attention

BY ANGELO PATRI

Many parents are puzzled by the school failures of their children. Over and over the same story comes to the office — "My child is bright and active at home, but the teacher says he is lazy and does not work, and that if he does no better he is going to be left back."

"Now my child is a bright intelligent child and there is no use in keeping him back to do the same work. He won't have any interest in it. He's bright enough at home. Why doesn't the teacher make him work?"

After many years of this our experience says: "The child who can do school work well does it gladly, likes to do it. The child who refuses, seemingly to do his work, cannot do it and covers up failure with defiance and swagger or, if he is the other sort, with sickness and complaining."

Teachers frequently label the failing child Lazy. Labeling him in any way, Lazy, Deficient, Feeble-minded, does not help in the least. After finding that the child is not profiting by instruction our duty is to learn why this is so. Until we find the cause of school failures and remove them, we can do nothing worth while for the failing child.

Parents need to know that there are several types of intelligence. I mean that intelligence is expressed in different fields of activity. It is possible for a child to be intelligent about helping about the house, on the farm, in a shop, and be a blank in school work. And, on the other side, we find children intelligent about book learning and quite helpless in any field of activity beyond that.

We cannot give a child any power that nature omitted but we can direct the training of all children in such a way as to develop the powers he has. If we do that we will do well. In order to do that we must have the help of the children's specialists: psychologists, neurologists, psychiatrists, vocational guidance leaders, all teachers, all child leaders. We need all the knowledge we can muster to enable us to help any one child and the failing one in particular.

Parents have a false pride about such children. They hate to believe that a child of theirs is anything less than the best in every way. The standard they measure the children by is a false one, for it is set on only phase of human activity, book learning. Book knowledge is honored above all other kinds and the assumption that forces this is a false one. Knowledge of life, of people and their ways, ability to do what the situation demands, what we call practical experience is quite as

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: Harold has measles, and the farm is quarantined. Tomi must have the Toland tribe on her hands for two weeks of the rush season. Since this is not a "visit," the will won't be affected.

Chapter 24
The Barbecue

"Aunt Hannah!" Tomi's voice was cool and firm. It belied the inner quaking. "I am in charge of my own home. No one is going to use my office. If Austin can't sleep because the Major snores, let him stuff his ears with cotton. And I'm doing the ordering of groceries and I'm doing the cooking, and if you don't like what I prepare you can go hungry like you did at breakfast."

"Well, I must say," gasped Hannah Toland. Then, recollecting "Tomi" to your room. Instantly, "Tomi" almost turned and started for her room; then she held her ground.

"I'm in my room. Aunt Hannah. Every room in this house belongs to me. I'll expect each of you to respect my ownership."

Great-aunt Hannah arose and made a sweeping gesture. The family arose with her and gathered around.

"Pack again," ordered the matriarch. "We're leaving here immediately."

"No," observed a quiet voice from the hall. "I don't believe you are."

Tomi wheeled and found Allen Bartlett had come quietly through the door. His face was stern, but never had Tomi seen the golden lights in his eyes dance as they did now.

"And just what is to keep us from leaving?" demanded Hannah Toland.

Bartlett smiled. "The law," he explained. Then, with a shrug of his shoulders, "Of course, if you want me to call the wagon and have you all taken to the pest-house, I'll be glad to do. However, I think you'll be much more comfortable here."

And then he seemed to swoop grow into a permanent fixture whose beauty is proportional to preplanting care.

Make the trench twelve inches deep. Dig one side of the trench straight up and down. Against this side set the plants four inches deeper than they stood in the nursery row. The lower branches are now under the ground and will form a bushy hedge from the ground up. Next, return the soil until the trench is nearly full, compact it by tamping, flood with water and wait until all surplus has drained away when the remaining soil should be returned as a mulch layer.

Now, using the heavy pruning shears, cut all plants to a height of six inches and the hedge will be well on its way. Keep the plants cut back severely the first season, pruning whenever the ends get leggy.

THE HOME GARDENER

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

Stiff, formidable and generally unattractive appearing fences have outlived their day. Hedges are now the accepted boundaries for city and suburban lots. Where low first cost is essential and still less money is available for maintenance, the shrubs, vines and evergreen trees, so often mentioned in this connection, are also out. The accepted hedge plant is California privet. It fills the imposed requirements provided it is properly planted.

California privet is obtainable in the form of small plants that grow quickly. As a consequence, most purchasers make the common blunder of setting the plants too close to the walks where they are harmed by, and tear the clothes of passersby.

Start right. Set your hedge plants at least two feet from boundaries in deeply dug and well enriched soil. Remember: The hedge will

Outline Time and Rates Schedules For Neenah Pool

Commission Draws Tentative Arrangements For Summer

Neenah—Tentative rates and time schedules for the swimming pools at the new recreation center have been outlined by the Neenah Recreation commission, Paul Stocker, manager, announced today.

The rate schedule will be in effect for 30 days, the commission has decided, and after that time, if it is found that changes are necessary they will be made.

The pools will be open on week days from 9 o'clock in the morning until 10:30 at night, and on the Sunday, the pools will not open until noon. On exceptionally hot nights during the summer, however, the pools will remain open longer.

For admission into the pool, children, including grade school pupils, high school students and this year's graduates, will be admitted free from 9 o'clock in the morning until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. An admission charge will be made after 2 o'clock, and children under 10 years of age will pay 5 cents and those between 10 and 18 years of age will pay 10 cents.

The admission charge for adults will be 15 cents at all times.

Season Tickets

The Recreation commission also had decided to sell season tickets for children as well as adults and these tickets will be for Neenah people only, and they will admit the owners to the pool any time that it is open. They will not be transferable.

The children's season tickets will cost $1.50 and the adults' season tickets will amount to $3.

The commission pointed out that if the pool would open June 1 and close Aug. 31, amounting to 92 swimming days, it would cost a person $13.80 if he swims every day at 15 cents per swim, $6.90 for half the season, 46 days, and $4.50 for one-third the season or 30 days. While for admissions at 10 cents a swim, it would cost a child $9.20 for the whole season of 92 days, $4.60 for 46 days or half the season, and $3.10 for one-third the season or 30 days.

To determine rates for the Neenah pool, the commission has made a complete study of rates charged at other pools. Rates charged by 14 cities in Wisconsin which have outdoor pools were secured and used as a basis, and a comparison of these rates and the ones to be charged in Neenah shows that Neenah's are below the average.

Physicians Urge Smallpox Vaccine

Save Early Vaccination of Children Checks Danger of Epidemic

Neenah—Medical authorities recommend early vaccination of babies "still in the cradle" to strengthen mankind's attack on smallpox, H. O. Haugh, city health officer, pointed out today.

Reports by two physicians at a symposium on virus disease at Harvard's school of public health showed that vaccination done in infancy is unlikely to cause trouble, and has the advantage of protecting the child during his early years when smallpox, if contracted, is most likely to be serious.

The report of Dr. Frederick F. Russell showed that vaccination must be done regularly on all newcomers, if possible in the first year of life, until the whole world is vaccinated in order to combat the disease. Physicians also recommended vaccination at an early school age for increased immunity.

While the mortality and incidence of the disease has shown a reduction in recent years, many states have had little success in controlling it, very largely the states of the west and middle west which have no laws regarding vaccination or states in which the laws have not been enforced.

While Neenah has had no epidemic of smallpox recently, it is only because of the effective vaccination campaign in the future, said. He pointed out that future epidemics can be prevented only by immunizing each successive group of children at an early age.

Board Will Act on Civil Service for Pension Employees

Winnebago County Supervisors to Begin Reorganization Tuesday

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—The organization meeting of the Winnebago county board of supervisors will begin here Tuesday. The first order of business will be the election of a successor to County Chairman J. F. Shea, town of Nekimi, and Vice Chairman Robert M. Heckner, Menasha.

The board at this session will decide whether to adopt the state board of public welfare's plan of placing the pension department under civil service as required by the federal government. This civil service question must be decided by all county boards in the state at their May meeting.

Under the state plan all present employees and others seeking pension jobs must take a civil service exam. The present employees, if they have worked in the pension department for six months previous to January 1 of this year must receive a grade of 70 to keep their job. The next basis for selection will be the top three ratings of persons residing in the county followed by the highest three grades of those not living in the county.

The county board also must appoint an administrator for the pension department or can delegate such an appointment to a committee. The supervisors also must rule as to the amount of pay for pension workers, and the possibilities of vacations, sick leave, and leave of absence for pension department employees.

Other matters scheduled to come before the board are the bills for gas, oil and grease of the county police officers from March 15 to April 1. They were denied payments by the district attorney in an opinion on the salary schedule adopted by the board last March in which the supervisors increased the pay of the officers but provided that they must pay for their own gas and oil. Though the wage increase went into effect on April 1, the district attorney ruled that March 15 was the last day the county would pay the gas and oil expenses.

The board also will act upon a resolution to draft a county ordinance which would determine how far back from the zoning, intersections, and railroad crossings buildings may be located.

Hussong Urges Support of Moves to Preserve Nature

Menasha—Support all moves to beautify and conserve, be cautious of moves to eradicate native plants and birds, allow nature to work without man-made improvements, obey written and unwritten conservation laws, educate yourselves and others in the idea of conservation, were suggestions to aid conservation given by Mrs. Clara Hussong, Green Bay, at the Twin City Business and Professional Women's club conservation breakfast in Hotel Menasha Sunday. About 60 women attended the breakfast and program.

Mrs. Hussong, feature writer for the Appleton Post-Crescent and Green Bay Press-Gazette, discussed "The Preservation of Natural Landscape," speaking of the continuous changes made in the landscape, chiefly through cultivation and forest fires. Man's way is to tear down, and then, realizing his mistake, attempt to put back what he took. Federal state and county laws preserve plants and flowers today. Lotus plants, arbutus, trilliums, orchids, bittersweet, wood lilies, the turkspike lilies, and pitcher plants are among those which may not be picked unless a permit is obtained from the conservation department. Such permits are only issued for picking of plants for botanical purposes, Mrs. Hussong said.

Miss Eunice Fenelon, landscape architect of Weyauwega, spoke briefly about the garden center at Cleveland with which she was connected for six years. Miss Fenelon discussed the landscaping development in the park.

Menasha Eagles Drop Opener to Oshkosh, 3 to 0

Collect Only Four Hits, 19 are Retired Vq Strikeout Method

Menasha—Menasha Eagles dropped a 3 to 0 decision in their first tilt of the season Sunday to the Union team at Oshkosh. The Eagles managed to collect only four hits off three Oshkosh pitchers and went down by strikeouts when men were on base. Nineteen Eagles were retired on strikes.

Clarence Zielinski and H. Pavletski hurled for the Eagles and limited Oshkosh to six hits. Zielinski struck out six and allowed four hits and two runs in four innings while Pavletski struck out two and allowed two hits and one run in four innings. The first 11 men in the game were retired on strikes.

The unions got two runs in the first inning when Sprague opened with a double, Rief singled and with a fielder's choice and an error on the pitcher, two runs scored. They scored their third run in the eighth when Rief doubled, stole third, and then scored while Pavletski threw out Kleinschmidt.

The Eagles hits were well divided. Stepsinski singled in the first inning but got no farther. In the fourth Prunuske singled and Koerner walked. Koerner singled in the seventh but stayed on first while the next three men went down swinging.

In the eighth Beach walked and Prunuske was hit by a pitched ball. The runners advanced to second and third but got no farther. In the ninth Brandt was hit by a pitched ball and Weber singled after two were out. Beach bid for a home run with a long fly but the center-fielder caught the ball for the final out.

The WORLD OF STAMPS

The 31st birthday anniversary of Germany's Chancellor, Adolf Hitler, was commemorated by a special stamp, shown here.

Its color is red-brown, its denomination 12 pfennig plus 38 pfennig. At the top, it bears Hitler's birth date, April 20, and at the bottom the denomination and name of the country in German. In the center is a medallion showing Der Fuehrer patting the cheek of a small girl who holds flowers in her hand.

Along with the Hitler stamp, a Bohemia-Moravia green of 50-halr denomination arrived here. This item has something of a "history." Some observers profess to see a map of the Czechoslovakia—that was in a cloud on the stamp as originally issued. When this news got around, the issue was withdrawn and a new stamp issued in its place. It is the latter which has reached the United States. The item shows a view of the town of Neuhaus in the protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia.

Stamp Centennial Program

The United States Office of Education, the Smithsonian Institution and the National Broadcasting Company have joined in a program to commemorate the centennial of adhesive postage stamps.

The program will be signaled in two ways: 1. An 80-station NBC red network broadcast on Sunday, May 5, from 3:30 to 4 p. m., EST. The broadcast, part of the "World Is Yours" series, will dramatize the transmission of messages through the ages.

2. A special issue of the "World Is Yours" magazine, "The 100 Years of Adhesive Postage Stamps." The 24-page, illustrated magazine will be published on May 7. Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker has indicated the magazine should be useful to school philatelic groups and to history and social study classes.

The "World Is Yours" program has been on the air almost four years. Its purpose is to present to radio-listeners the story of the wonders of nature and the works of man as revealed by the scientists of the Smithsonian Institution by the United States Office of Education.

Be Proud of Our Faith, Holy Name Gathering Is Told

500 Men Participate in Deanery Rally at Waupaca Sunday

Waupaca — "Let Us Be Proud of Our Faith" was the theme of the deanery rally of the Holy Name society at Waupaca Sunday morning in which five hundred men from Catholic parishes of Waupaca County attended.

The theme was voiced by the Rev. Martin H. Vosbeck, diocesan director of the Holy Name society, at the 8:30 communion mass at which he was celebrating. Circuit Judge Roland J. Steinle of Milwaukee County, Milwaukee, guest speaker at the mass breakfast at the Clintonville armory; and by the Rev. P. L. Krembs, pastor of the Waupaca church.

Judge Steinle devoted an hour to pointing out the contributions of the church to the progress of the world and the individual leaders it has produced in all fields of endeavor down through the ages, in addition to its task of spreading Catholicity to all parts of the world.

The five hundred men filled St. Mary Magdalene church to capacity to attend 8:30 mass and receive holy communion in a body. Acolytes serving at the mass were Judge A. M. Scheller, Postmaster J. W. Carew, Dr. W. H. Remmel, and James Corrigan, all members of the Waupaca society. Music was provided by a male choir of thirty-five voices selected from the various visiting units. The choir was directed by Attorney B. E. Meyer of Marion with Paul Hart, president of the Waupaca society, at the organ.

Hull's Vote-Getting Ability Shown Again as He Outstrips Roosevelt in 'Trial Heat' with Taft

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J. — Despite the belief of many New Dealers that President Roosevelt is the only man who can lead the Democrats to victory, fresh evidence is at hand to show that Cordell Hull's vote-getting ability at the present time may actually be greater than the President's.

In a series of "trial heat" surveys just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion, Hull, Roosevelt and Garner were each pitted in turn against Senator Robert Taft, one of the leading G. O. P. aspirants. The results show that Hull runs a substantially better race than Roosevelt does against the Ohio Senator at this time.

This is the second specific demonstration of Hull's vote-getting strength. Three weeks ago, in another Institute trial heat, he ran substantially better than Roosevelt against Senator Arthur Vandenberg.

The reason for Hull's advantage, the study shows, is that he not only has virtually all of the 1936 Roosevelt vote behind him, but also a fair-sized slice of the 1936 Republican vote. Not suffering from the handicap of the anti-third term tradition, Hull is favored by more than twice as many Republicans as is Roosevelt in the hypothetical race with Taft.

The following questions were put to a cross-section of voters in all of the 48 states:
"If Cordell Hull runs on the Democratic ticket against Senator Taft on the Republican ticket, which one would you prefer?"
Taft 40%
Hull 60%

"If President Roosevelt runs for a third term on the Democratic ticket against Senator Taft on the Republican ticket, which one would you prefer?"
Roosevelt 58%
Taft 42%

"If John Garner runs on the Democratic ticket against Senator Taft on the Republican ticket, which one would you prefer?"
Garner 51%
Taft 49%

These results do not constitute any forecast of sentiment when the campaign formally opens. They reflect opinion only as of the current month.

They are not an index of Taft's possible performance in case he is nominated, for two reasons.
In the first place, from one-tenth to one-fifth of the voters polled expressed no opinion. In the trial heat between Hull and Taft, for example, 22 per cent said they had not made up their minds how they would choose in such a race. Obviously, if a majority of the undecided group were to decide for Taft he would run a much closer race than that shown today.

In the second place, winning the G. O. P. nomination would be likely to increase Taft's popularity substantially, even if there were no other factors operating in his favor. The enormous publicity and "build-up" given to the nominee nearly always sways voters in his favor at least temporarily. Institute studies in 1936 show, for example, that Governor Landon's popularity jumped four points almost overnight upon his nomination.

Hull Draws Better
The Hull strength in trial heat races is especially interesting because, in surveys conducted among Democrats alone, Roosevelt has always overshadowed everyone else, including Hull, in popularity among the rank and file of the party.
But it must be remembered that how a candidate will run depends not only on his strength in his own party, but on how popular he is with voters of the opposition party and with young voters and persons who did not vote in the previous election.

Hull's popular strength in today's survey stems from the fact that he appeals to just as many Democrats as Roosevelt does, and to twice as many Republicans as Roosevelt. Running against Taft, the study shows, Hull draws 84 per cent of the voters who were Democratic in 1936. Roosevelt also draws the same proportion—84 per cent—in his trial race with Taft. But there the similarity between the Hull and Roosevelt performances stops. The difference in their appeal to Republican voters is shown below:

1936 Landon Voters
Hull	21%	Taft	79%
Roosevelt	8	Taft	92
Garner	11	Taft	89

1936 Roosevelt Voters
Hull	84%	Taft	16%
Roosevelt	84	Taft	16
Garner	74	Taft	26

In coming weeks the Institute will put Hull and Roosevelt against Dewey and other Republican candidates to see which of these two Democratic leaders runs better against the popular young New York District Attorney.

Running against Hull or Roosevelt, Senator Taft would make his best showing, the study indicates, in the New England, Middle Atlantic and East Central areas. In the East Central states — Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois — he runs virtually neck and neck with Roosevelt and not far behind Hull.

States	58%	44%

SENATOR TAFT

SECRETARY HULL

Assuming that Senator Taft is the Republican nominee for the presidency, his strongest opponent would be Secretary Cordell Hull, a Gallup survey indicates. A "trial heat" conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion indicates that Hull would draw substantially more votes than Roosevelt if he were pitted against the Ohio senator.

glimbling she won't have time for anything else."
"She laid the list aside with a sigh of satisfaction and heard her sigh echoed from the doorway. Allen stood there, face serious, eyes dancing.
"I told you, you were going to have dinner with me tonight," he observed.
Toni laughed. "But you'll be having dinner with me, instead."
"No, the invitation still stands. I've just broadened its scope. I'm telephoning for supplies. The ham is included in the quarantine. I'll give the gang a barbecue. I have a feeling they'll get a kick out of it."

Toni smiled, warmly. He was certainly taking the quarantine with good grace. The smile faded abruptly. Of course he was. He probably thought it had destroyed her chance of winning the farm.
Somehow Toni had more confidence in Doctor Tillman than she had in Bartell. He had seemed to know he could have a moratorium called on the will for the duration of the quarantine.
By evening Toni decided the only ones who were not taking the quarantine like gentlemen were Pierre and Old Abe. Pierre, reached by long-distance telephone, had nearly burned the wires with his malediction.

"Bartell's behind this," he told Toni. "You'll find out that doctor is a friend of his."
"I suppose you think Allen gave the measles to Harold," flashed Toni.
"I don't know that the boy has measles. Neither do you. And if he has, why couldn't Tillman have these people moved to an isolation camp? Now answer that."
"I certainly will," Toni flamed. "The Tolands are my family—my very own blood, and any time I run them off into an isolation camp, after they've cared for me for years—"
"Oh, cherie, cherie," implored Pierre, "don't you understand that I am only trying to show you that you are not dealing with people who have your interests at heart? Think of the will contest. Think of the way that Toland family spoke of you on the stand and in their depositions. And Bartell—hasn't he tried to thwart you at every turn?"
"Oh, I know, Pierre," Toni sighed, "but—well it's happened. Now come on home and look after the frogs. Thank goodness Monday is a light day, but there are a dozen orders due out on the Tuesday morning trains."

Abe had listened to the news in blank silence. When Toni told him she would arrange sleeping quarters in the house, so Pierre could use the bunk-house, he had objected.
"I'm not sleeping" inside that house," he had stated flatly. "I'm hearin' enough outside. I'll make me a bed in my car."
Radiant faces
Toni had sold the ark to Abe for a dollar, and still believed she had cheated the old man.
The family departed for the barbecue long before Toni was ready. Then, assured that Harold was resting the affable nurse well-fed and content, she walked across the yard to Allen's.

What a day this had been. What did it portend? And what in the name of goodness was going on at Allen's? Toni started to run. A long line of red heads were bobbing up and down. And that noise—it couldn't be singing?
She neared and slowed. The Tolands, each with his head tied in a red kerchief, were doing something like a chain-step. Now they had broken from each other and were doing an Indian war dance.
Toni slowed. Such serious faces! Even Allen and Great-aunt Hannah were singing and going through the ceremony as though their lives depended upon it.
The first verse had been: "This is the way to the barbecue pit." The second was: "This is the way we build our fires." Now they were going into: "This is the way we turn the spit." And each verse was accompanied by gestures.

The song stopped abruptly at a motion from Allen. Now the family ran for the long table under the trees and began pounding on the board with knives, singing: "This is the way we down the grub."
Toni stood writhing in anger. It was all right for Allen Bartell to humiliate her. She could fend for herself, but to make a collection of fools of the Tolands... She caught a glimpse of their faces. Why, they were radiant. She'd never seen them look as free, as gay, as altogether unconscious of themselves.
Allen and Great-aunt Hannah were quarreling over a rack of spare-ribs. Aunt Hannah's hand slipped and barbecue sauce splashed over Allen's face and shirt front. Aunt Hannah's voice lifted in a hearty laugh. Her kerchief came off so she could wipe his face. Then he insisted she must wear his.
Unnoticed, Toni slipped in between the peacefully quiet Jane and the happy, rumbling Major.
"This place is the nuts," the beaming Austin told her across the table. Slang from the erudite Austin?
Dinner was soon over and still Toni found herself ignored. Great-aunt Hannah was focusing her attention on Allen, and relieved of her commanding glance, the family gambled.
Toni found a secluded spot on the cliff and sat staring at the quiet waters, the quiet sky where a slip of a moon dipped its horns in the amber wash of sunset.
Could Allen be distracting Great-aunt Hannah to give the others a chance to play?
And why was she, Toni, awarding him such powers of discernment?

Dotty had said that old women had their wits made over regularly, just to bask in the warmth of Allen's charm. Toni felt a sharp pang of alarm. Great-aunt Hannah was wealthy. But, happy thought, she had no land, excepting that on which the Chicago home was built. Allen wouldn't want that. Nobody could.
Allen found her staring moodily across the water to where the San Francisco lights twinkled like desirous eyes.

700-Pound Safe Is Stolen From Station

New London — A safe weighing 700 pounds was carted away from Clark's Super service station some time last night and New London police today were trying to trace the "strong-arm" burglars. The station, which is located at the south city limits on Highway 41, was entered by forcing a lavatory window.

The safe contained about $15 in cash and valuable legal papers, Milton Holzsch, manager of the station, reported. A candy machine was rifled and a 2-gallon can of oil also taken. Tracks indicated the burglars used a truck. Lester Graebel, attendant, discovered the theft when he opened the station this morning.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

BELGIUM

The average number of persons on each square mile in Belgium is about 712. That figure is based on a late census estimate.

Charlemagne in Brussels, as pictured by a modern artist.

In area, Belgium is one of the small countries of Europe, but it has more people to the square mile than any other nation on the continent of Europe. England is just about as thickly settled, but it is cut off from the continent of Europe by the English channel.

Belgium does not have so much land or so many people as Spain, but it has about six times as many people per square mile. It has almost twice as many people per square mile as Germany.

Going back to the time of the Roman empire, we find that a large part of Gaul was called "Belgica." This region was bounded on one side by the Rhine river, on another by the Seine river. A third side bordered the sea. People in this part of Gaul were known as "Belgae."

The Belgae seem to have been mainly Celts, but they probably had a mixture of German blood in their veins. Some Belgae crossed the channel to Britain and settled in the parts of England now known as Kent and Sussex.

Almost half of the present-day Belgians are classed as "Walloons." They are descended from the ancient Belgae.

The Walloons speak the French language, and in their ways of life they are a great deal like the French.

Most of the rest of the Belgians are Flemings, who are rather close relatives of the Dutch. There are more Flemings in Belgium than Walloons, and they speak a different language--Flemish.

The Flemings are centered mostly in the provinces known as East Flanders and West Flanders.

Belgium has been a free country for only 109 years. It was under the power of Rome for five centuries. Later it was ruled by the French, by the Germans, by the Spaniards and by the Austrians.

The great emperor, Charlemagne, once had a "country home" in what is now Belgium. His palace, however, was in France.

Kaukauna Host to Musicians From 40 High Schools

City Turns All Facilities Over to Students for District Festival

Kaukauna — Music was king Saturday as Kaukauna residents in large measure forsook their normal day to welcome musicians from 40 schools to the district music festival. Solo and ensemble competition was held, with bands and concert groups coming to town next Saturday to conclude the festival.

By school bus, car and special train, students surged into the city, the first arriving before 8 o'clock. The streets were filled with brightly colored uniforms as the entrants sought their respective competition centers. The city put all its public buildings, organization headquarters and some private homes to work running off the tourney.

Ten solid hours of competition, from 8 o'clock to 6 o'clock, was necessary to determine the hundreds of winners. As students finished their own numbers they crowded into the halls to hear other freshmen, at their first tournament, gazed enviously at medal-bedecked seniors awaiting their turn.

600 See Twirlers

The twirlers put on one of the best shows, with never less than 600 watching the athletic field exhibition.

The high school was the center of activity. Each arriving red, white and blue school bus discharged its cargo into this building, where competitors went to assigned rooms. There they received copies of the program and maps of the city to guide them to their respective halls.

At 7:30 Saturday evening the civic auditorium overflowed as students and parents gathered to hear the outstanding numbers of the day, and to listen to the list of awards. Joseph T. Sadlier, Kaukauna Advancement association secretary, read for more than an hour as the results were announced. The auditorium slowly emptied as contestants learned how they had done. Impromptu cheering sections sprang up, especially among those from smaller schools, as their students were mentioned.

The day also marked the opening of Kaukauna's sesquicentennial celebration, which will continue with events through the summer. It was 150 years ago that Dominic Ducharme built the city's first house.

Track Squad Will Meet DePere Team

Kaws Ready for First Dual Meet of Season On Home Grounds

Kaukauna — Coach Clifford H. Kemp's track squad will engage in its first home dual meet of the season at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, meeting West De Pere's Black Phantoms. Last Wednesday at Neenah the Kaws opened the season with a decisive victory over the Rockets.

Little is known of the strength of the DePere squad, which placed ahead of Kaukauna in the district and conference meets at Neenah last year, but Kemp has uncovered several newcomers who, with last year's veterans, should give Kaukauna at least an even chance.

Kaukauna's best point winners appear to be Lee Cooper in the 440, Ralph Deering and Calvin Spice in the hurdles, Karl Giordana and Bill Alger in the discus and shotput, Robert Derus and Junior Swedberg in the pole vault and John Velle in the mile. Only fair marks were turned in at Neenah, but a cold day and brisk wind hampered the teams.

Residence Fire Loss Is Estimated at $500

Kaukauna — Fire caused damages estimated at about $500 at 7:40 yesterday morning at the home of William Haberland, Green Bay road. The blaze began in the basement, where some rubbish was stored, and rose to the attic along the chimney, according to Henry Essler, fire chief. The Haberlands had gone to Marshfield for the day.

MUSIC FESTIVAL ENTRIES STUDY MAP OF CITY

Kaukauna—Some 2,000 people came to Kaukauna Saturday as the first day's program of the district music festival was run off, with another day of activity slated for Saturday of this week. Left to right are Norman Knapp, Millicent Levine, June Kuehlman and Duane Schoening.

Sheboygan Central, Two Rivers Take Top Music Festival Honors

Kaukauna — Sheboygan Central and Two Rivers High schools topped the list of winners in solo competition Saturday in the district music festival, the latter having 31 first place winners and the former 38. East DePere was third with 24 while New London led 23.

Sheboygan Central, 38, 22, 5; Two Rivers, 37, 30, 5; DePere, 24, 12, 1; New London, 23, 15, 9; Kaukauna, 21, 12; Algoma, 19, 15, 11; Menasha, 18, 20, 2; West DePere, 18, 12, 5; Chilton, 18, 20, 9.

All-Stars Break Tie in Tenth to Defeat Corners

Powers, Filz Share Work On Mound for Winning Team

Kaukauna — Kaukauna Klub All-Stars pushed over a run-in in the tenth inning yesterday afternoon to defeat Murphy's Corners, 8 to 7, on the library grounds.

The visitors, helped by several Appleton stars, led the Klub, 4 to 1, until the Kaukauna team made five runs to take a 6 to 4 lead in the last of the seventh. The Corners squad came through with three runs in the first of the ninth to tie matters up.

Sherman Powers pitched the first two innings for the winners, striking out four but allowing a run in the first frame. Sonny Filz took up the hurling duties in the third, and fanned 13 the rest of the game. Jack Murphy hurled six innings for the Corners team, striking out five and allowing five hits in this time.

Calmes relieved Murphy in the seventh and was promptly socked for the five runs which put the Klub ahead. A walk to Kappell, Steer's single, successive triples by Dean and Eiting and three enemy errors sent five Klubs across.

After Murphy's Corners made three runs in the ninth the Klubs, with one out, rattled off four straight singles to score the winning run in the tenth.

Other People's Tulips Bloom But Yours Aren't Supposed to

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Our park department has been having a small fuss over the conduct of 900,000 tulip bulbs which were presented to the city of New York by the Netherlands government, most of which have failed to tulip this spring. The park department says the bulbs got too hot or too cold on the way over, and the Dutch growers will have it that they were planted improperly. With the world in its present state this is no time to complicate relations between this country and the Netherlands over such a matter and this is once that your correspondent feels able to help.

The fact of the matter is that tulips aren't supposed to bloom. That is, your own tulips. Other people's tulips, yes. Yours, no! If one of your own tulips does bloom, that is just so much gravy. Your own are always planted upside down or the moles got them or the ground was too soggy or too dry or you put them in too early or too late or the frost reached them. It was a pretty hard winter in spots, and if it was the mildest winter in 30 years, why, that was only on the average.

It was mild on the average because there were so many sunny, springlike days toward the end, and so many lovely Indian summer days right up to Christmas which raised the average temperature. But don't forget that terrible cold spell along toward the end of January. That was what nipped your tulips. Other people's tulips were protected by a wall or the lee of a hill or they were people's tulips and the Netherlands over such a matter and this is once that your correspondent feels able to help.

The tulip is a fairly reliable plant in the sense that you can put it in the ground and feel confident that when spring comes it will just stick up some twisted, greenish-brown leaves and then put out a stem with a little knob on the end which presently just falls over and doesn't do a damn thing. The Hollanders make an industry of tulips, but not for the blooms. They sell bulbs to the Americans, and they harvest the leaves and sell them to their neighbors, the Germans. Anybody who has ever smoked a German cigar knows what the Germans use the leaves for, just as anybody who has ever smoked a French cigarette knows what the thrifty French do with their hair combs.

Isn't First Instance Of Trouble Over Tulips
This isn't the first time that the relations of Holland with another country have been embarrassed by the tulip. There was a period a long time ago when the whole world went crazy over tulip bulbs, which became a medium of gambling or speculation that led to a crash comparable to the collapse of the Florida boom or the panic of 1929. They sold bulbs for as much as $25,000 apiece, and companies were formed to buy one bulb.

A book tells of a disastrous incident in which an English sailor, sent ashore to deliver a present from his master to a Dutch merchant and, being given a heaving for his trouble, casually flipped from the counter an object which he took to be an onion to eat with the herring. It was half gone when the Dutch merchant discovered his loss, and I don't just remember, but I think the ship owner lost a big lawsuit and the sailor got life. But, even so, if the bulb had been planted, the odds are a hundred to one that it would have been put in upside down or the frost or moles or the damp would have got it, or it would have run all to German cigar leaf.

If Not Tulips Then It's Something Else
Tulips do no harm. They have their place in the world, but they are not in the habit of blooming any more than a wisteria which your correspondent mentioned a year or so ago, which was bred to a bull wisteria and even subjected to a delicate operation, but finally settled down to life of spinsterhood. It is just an old bag, but we let it hang around. Tulips keep commerce going between Holland and other countries, and if you think it is wrong to sell bulbs which do not give tulips, then what would you say about color-movie films which give hundreds of feet of realistic views of the inside of a coal mine at midnight in the dark of the moon when aimed at tropical scenes in Florida?

These films also cost money, but nobody ever expects them to produce color movies, except now and again a chance shot, just as the tulip, sometimes, unexpectedly gives a tulip.

That is to say, of course, your tulip bulbs and your color films

Pegler
